TALKS FAIL TO END RAIL STRIKE,
NEW ONE STARTSNegotiators Called Back After Midday Conference Breaks Up—More Workers Walk Out.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Another White House attempt to end the rail strike failed today and still another attempt was being made late this afternoon.

Meanwhile, strikers left their jobs in two more walkouts.

After futile White House conferences with striking union leaders and a committee of railroad officials broke up at 12:30 a.m., John R. Steelman, presidential assistant, reported failure to President Truman and was told to "keep on trying."

Another conference was called by Steelman midday.

At 12:30 p.m. he announced that both groups had left the White House without getting together.

At 3:15 p.m. both sides were recalled to the White House.

May Involve Major Line.

Union leaders hinted they might expand the strikes to a major railroad. There was some speculation that if a settlement isn't reached soon, either the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Southern Pacific or Santa Fe might be struck.

The new strikes are in Pittsburgh and Chicago. Like those called yesterday in Louisville, Cleveland and Minneapolis-St. Paul, these are five-day work strikes to call attention to a wage-hour dispute that has dragged on for 17 months.

All the strikes are comparatively small, but they are in such key spots that union leaders have estimated they will put 50,000 men out of work.

Steel Road Hit.

Today's strikes went off like clockwork. The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Order of Railroad Conductors called the walkout against United States Steel Corporation's railroad, the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern at Chicago, and the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad, Pittsburgh. The Chicago strikers numbered 1400; in Pittsburgh 1200 struck.

The Pittsburgh strike stopped 40 daily passenger trains on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie. Twenty-four of these were Pittsburgh & Lake Erie trains; the remaining 16 were Baltimore & Ohio trains running on the P. & L. E. tracks. The Chicago strike was confined to a freight line.

In Chicago more than 30,000 steel and railroad workers were made idle. At the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. plant in south Chicago 12,000 were laid off, and at its plant in nearby Gary, Ind., 15,000 of the 22,000 workers were made idle. Also forced from their jobs were more than 4,000 non-striking employees of the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern.

Other steel companies in the Chicago area reported they have access to other railroads.

Iron and Coal Road.

The P. & L. E. is an important carrier of iron ore from the Mesabi range in Minnesota and Ashland, O. Neither the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. nor United States Steel Corp., both served by the line, expects to curtail operations here as a result of the walkout. Both reported adequate stockpiles of iron ore and coal.

The unions have demanded repeatedly that the President use seizure powers bestowed by a 1916

POWERFUL ATOMIC RESEARCH
PILE OPERATING, 6TH FOR U.S.

Plant at Brookhaven National Laboratory on Long Island Being Run for AEC by Eastern Universities.

UPTON, N.Y., Aug. 22 (UP)—The nation's first postwar atomic pile—probably the most powerful in the world—began operating today.

At 2:30 a.m., Dr. Lyle B. Borst, in charge of the atomic furnace, signaled for the removal of control rods that had held the forces of nature in check. Immediately, a chain reaction of splitting atoms began, and the big pile was in operation.

The pile has been built strictly for research purposes, and it will be several months before the furnace attains its full power of 30,000 kilowatts. It took three years to build it at a cost of about $25,000,000.

At Brookhaven Laboratory, the pile is housed in a large rectangular building on the grounds of Brookhaven National Laboratory which is operated for the United States Atomic Energy Commission by a group of Eastern universities.

It is the sixth research atomic furnace now operating in the country, and the commission said it will be "several times" more powerful than the atomic energy pile at Oak Ridge, Tenn. While the pile here was designed primarily for research, similar piles have been used to convert uranium 235—which is not suitable for atom bombs—into plutonium, which is highly fissionable—that is, good bomb material.

RETURN TO NORMAL
SUMMER WEATHER
TOMORROW SEEN

Sweaters and jackets, popular in St. Louis since a cold air mass arrived early Sunday, may go back into closets and mothballs tomorrow. Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren, noting that the temperature was down to a brisk 59 at 6 o'clock this morning, said that by tomorrow afternoon temperatures will be back to the mid-80s, "getting back to normal."

Asked if the three-day cool spell may be taken as an indication that no more torrid weather is likely for St. Louis this summer, Wahlgren cautioned that "it's just possible to get hot weather," recalling that the first week in September in St. Louis occasionally is very warm.

Today's 59-degree minimum equaled the temperature recorded on this date 20 years ago.

But the record low for Aug. 22 was in 1837 when the temperature dipped to 51. Today's minimum at Lambert-St. Louis field was 55.

Back in 1836, when St. Louis had its hottest summer, the temperature on this date reached 102. In contrast, yesterday's high was 75 at 5 p.m. In parts of Michigan, temperatures dipped below freezing early today. It was 31 at Pellston and Grand Marais and 32 at Sault Ste. Marie.

COMPANY HOLDING ATOM PATENT SUES
U.S. FOR $10,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (UP)—The United States Court of Claims may be asked soon to decide how much the atomic bomb is worth and how many it has.

A California firm which holds a patent on a basic atomic process which won Dr. Enrico Fermi the 1938 Nobel prize in physics has filed suit for $10,000,000 damages against the United States. It contends the atomic energy program violated its patent rights. Fermi no longer has any control over the patent and has no part in the suit.

Attorney for G. M. Glanville and Co., Inc., of Pasadena, Calif., admitted he was working "in the dark" in determining the patent license fee.

Therefore he asked for the right to increase the demand to more than $10,000,000 if necessary.

He said Fermi, one of the top atomic physicists and now a University of Chicago professor, invented the process at the University of Rome in collaboration with Dr. Edoardo Amaldi, Bruno Pontecorvo, Franco Rasetti, and Emilio Segre.

They were granted a United States patent and assigned it to the firm headed by Glanville, whom they knew in Rome. The firm then got a contract giving them a share in profits of the patent.

9 Persons, Including 2 Women, Swim
English Channel, 2 in Record Time

DOVER, England, Aug. 22 (AP)—Nine persons, two of them women, swam the English Channel today in a race sponsored by a London newspaper.

Twenty-four hopefuls started from Cape Gris Nez, France, in the contest, which turned into a dizzying procession of prowess.

An Egyptian shattered the world's record. A Frenchman also bettered the old record, but lagged 10 minutes behind the Egyptian.

Another Egyptian, a Greek, and a Scotsman reached shore after them, along with a 118-pound British school teacher and a Danish woman whose non-swimming occupation is dress designing.

The London Daily Mail paid the school teacher, 22-year-old Miss Eileen Fenton, £1000 ($2800) because she was the first woman across. Her time was 16 hours and 55 minutes, not even close to the world's record for

DARST PROPOSES
10-CENT TRANSIT
SHORT-HAUL FARE,
SHOPPER'S TICKET

Recommendations Keeping Student Passes, Token Sales, Children's Rate —Talks in P.S.Co. Dispute Resumed.

A 10-cent fare for the "short-haul" bus and streetcar riders and a special shopper's ticket "free from all zone restrictions" were proposed to the Public Service Co. yesterday by Mayor Joseph M. Darst.

He recommended retention of the student pass, sale of tokens at reduced prices and retention of the 5-cent fare for children.

The Public Service Co., on the other hand, is seeking permission to raise the fare for the suburban routes and wants to eliminate tokens and the 50-cent weekly pass for students.

He recommended retention of the student pass, sale of tokens at reduced prices and retention of the 5-cent fare for children.

The Public Service Co., on the other hand, is seeking permission to raise the fare for the suburban routes and wants to eliminate tokens and the 50-cent weekly pass for students.

The company also wants to raise children's fares from 5 to 7 cents, seeks to institute a system of zone fares for its remaining suburban routes and wants to eliminate tokens and the 50-cent weekly pass for students.

Negotiations are being resumed between the Public Service Co. and its AFL operating employees were resumed this morning at the Mayfair Hotel.

Essential issue in dispute is whether a 7-cent hourly wage increase, accepted by the union, shall be made retroactive to last Jan. 1. The company's refusal to institute the retroactive wage increase led to a three-day wildcat strike by bus and streetcar operators earlier this month.

In a letter to John L. Wilson, president of Public Service Co., Mayor Darst said he did not feel the increases sought by the company are "entirely suitable to the transportation needs of St. Louis."

"I am determined," the Mayor wrote, "that we shall build up and not destroy the downtown business section of St. Louis. The city has too much at stake to permit this. It is precisely for this reason that I have consistently encouraged slum clearance and urban redevelopment in the downtown area on a gigantic scale. Downtown St. Louis must continue to be accessible to shoppers."

"Therefore, I strongly recommend that you give consideration to a special shopper's ticket in the hours of 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at a reduced rate and free from all zone restrictions."

"Since you propose zone fares for the long-haul riders," the Mayor continued, "I believe it is incumbent upon you to work out a feasible plan to allow the short-haul rider to ride at a reduced fare. Such a reduced fare, in my opinion, should be a 10-cent fare, and should apply to passengers using the service within a radius of approximately three miles from Third and Locust streets."

Favors Token System.

"I believe that the system of reduced prices for the purchase of tokens should be retained."

Mayor Darst asked Wilson for the "comparative service schedules" of the company prior to the last fare increase and as of today, indicating the total reduction of services and the reason therefor.

Darst continued: "It is my belief that the suggestions I now make may help to formulate a plan which will work the least possible hardship on the masses of our community, on those least able to pay, and at the same time provide adequate service and make attractive the practice of shopping and seeking entertainment in the downtown area."

Darst declared: "Nothing in the schedules which you have submitted to the Public Service Commission takes into consideration what I consider to be important factors relating to the mass transportation facilities of the entire area."

The Public School Presidents' Club, consisting of representatives of five parents' groups, held a special meeting today at the Board of Education to discuss the proposal to eliminate student passes.

In a telegram to the State Public Service Commission, Philip T. Henderson, president of the club, said representatives of "100,000 public school children" strongly protest any change in the present issuance of student passes.

Every finisher aside from Miss Fenton and Rehm received a consolation prize of £250 ($700).

Twelve of the starters dropped out before they reached the halfway mark—among them the only American competitor, David Fenton, a New York clothing designer.

Next in the order named came: Egyptian No. 2, Marek Hassan Hamad, 33; Sam Rockett, 31, an Englishman; William Edward Barrie, 34, a Scotsman; Jason Ziegler, 40, a Greek army major; Miss Fenton; Antonio Albertondo, an Argentine; and Jennie Kammergaard, the Danish dress designer.

SENATE APPROVES
WAGE-PRICE BILL,

Home-Front Mobilization Measure Sent to Conference by Vote of 85 to 3—No Curbs Placed on Rationing.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Overwhelming Senate approval of a home-front mobilization bill virtually assured President Truman today the power to invoke wage-price-rationing controls and otherwise put the nation on a warlike footing.

The Senate passed the emergency measure last night by an 85-3 vote. It did so after writing in some restrictions on the President's authority which Administration forces fought against in vain. The three votes against the bill were cast by Republicans, Ecton of Montana, Malone of Nevada and Williams of Delaware.

Both Donnell and Kem of Missouri voted for the bill.

Differs From House Bill.

The Senate bill and an economic controls measure which the House approved Aug. 10 are vastly different in some essential details, but both authorize Truman to impose wage-price curbs and other inflation controls.

So the bill which finally goes to the White House—after a Senate-House conference committee ironed out differences between the two versions—certainly will carry wage-price-rationing authority.

Overriding vigorous Administration opposition, the Senate voted 85 to 3 to require the President to invoke wage and price controls simultaneously and virtually at all. The amendment was sponsored by Republican Senators Bricker of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska. Both Donnell and Kem voted for it. Senators Lucas and Douglas, Illinois Democrats, voted against it.

The amendment killed a section of the bill which would have let Truman put wage and price controls into effect on a selective basis if he cared to, in advance of any over-all program.

Under that plan, he would not have had to invoke general wage and price controls, but could have selected a part of the economy was under price control.

On the other hand, the Senate refused to strip from the bill all of the authority for wage and price controls. An amendment by Senator Capehart (Rep.), Indiana, to do that was rejected, 75 to 6.

The Administration suffered a setback on approval, 47 to 42, of an amendment by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem.), Colorado, to give the Commerce Department exclusive handling of (1) the allocation of scarce industrial materials and (2) assignment of priorities to speed defense production.

MANILA, Aug. 22 (AP)—A United States Thirteenth Air Force spokesman said today that a substantial part of the smuggling of $500,000 worth of narcotics into the Philippines in caskets containing the bodies of American World War II dead.

The spokesman said the Air Force has detained a United States Army officer in connection with the investigation. No charges have been filed.

Manila police were asked to assist. They were questioning several Chinese.

The spokesman said the caskets were flown from Hong Kong to the Philippines and reshipped to the United States after the narcotics, mostly opium, had been removed.

The French sloop La Grandiere already has been sent to join the United Nations fleet in Korean waters.

GERMAN REDS TOLD

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—The Soviet-controlled radio in Berlin for the first time since the fighting began made no direct mention of the Korean front in its morning broadcasts today.

The omission coincides with reports in Berlin that Soviet officials privately are telling German Communists that the timetable has gone wrong in the Korean campaign and that a different formula must be devised.

Meantime Soviet official publications, as distinguished from German Communist organs, are becoming increasingly violent in their cartoon and editorial attacks on United States soldiers and American leaders.

GIRL COMMUNIST LURED HIM, SAYS DESERTER IN GERMANY

WIESBADEN, Germany, Aug. 22 (UP)—Pvt. B. E. Martin of Ada, Mich., who said he had been lured into the Russian zone by a girl Communist, was convicted of desertion by a United States Army court-martial today. He was sentenced to 18 months in prison and dishonorable discharge.

Martin, 25 years old and a veteran of the Berlin air lift, said a German girl struck up an acquaintance with him at Fassberg, an airbase, June 20, 1949. He related that he accompanied her to her home at Lychen, spent two weeks there and had started back to the American zone when the Russians arrested him. He said the Russians kept him in prison six months, finally releasing him with instructions "to get a job and go back to your girl friend."

Lychen June 5, walked 20 miles to another town and caught a train to Berlin where he gave himself up to United States authorities.

Navy Plane on Mercy Mission
To Texas to Return Polio Sufferer

An iron lung and a medical crew were flown from Lambert-St. Louis field to Galveston, Tex., in a Navy transport plane today to return June Reisenhofer, 10-year-old polio sufferer, to St. Louis tomorrow.

June, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Reisenhofer, 604 Bellvue drive, Lemay, has been in an iron lung at St. Mary's Infirmary at Galveston since she was stricken with polio when on a visit to Mexico last May. Navy authorities agreed to make the mercy flight at the request of the St. Louis and St. Louis County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and railroad commercial airlines and railroads.

An oxygen expert and a crew of four Navy men to hand-operate the lung in the event of power failure will be aboard the plane. On arrival here the child will be taken to the polio ward at St. Anthony's Hospital.

American 25th Division
Regains All Ground

Reds' Sixth Division on Southern Front.

TOKYO, Aug. 22 (AP)—American infantrymen slammed back a Red Korean advance on the gateways to Pusan port today and wiped out a Communist roadblock infiltration under artillery fire 10 miles north of Taegu.

These were the day's principal actions on the 120-mile Korean beachhead battlefield.

South Korean marines landed yesterday on Ejak island off Inchon, port of Seoul, far behind the battle front. It was the fourth amphibious operation by the South Koreans in less than a week. No details were given by the Korean naval officer who announced the action.

Allied fighting men and tanks held firm or counter-attacked all along the line against the combined weight of nine enemy divisions—90,000 men—massed with armor to drive on Taegu and Pusan.

Reds Losing 4000 Men a Day.

North Korean losses in men mounted with every engagement. Their casualties in four days have averaged almost 4000 men a day, headquarters estimated.

The fighting on the south coastal approaches to Pusan. Allied support on the southeast tip of the peninsula, was in its third day.

Three times the men of the United States Twenty-fifth division infantry beat back the attacking Reds.

First, the United States Thirty-fifth Regiment drove a numerically superior North Korean force off a key ridge near Chungnam, 35 miles west of Pusan.

Next, Negro troops of the Twenty-fourth Regiment captured nearby Battle Mountain for the fifth time in four days. The Fifth Regimental Combat Team fought its way back to commanding heights of the Sobuk hills near Tundok, just south of Chungnam.

Lost Ground Regained.

Correspondent Stan Swinton reported from the southern front that the Twenty-fifth Division regained all the ground lost previously to attacking troops of the Red Korean Sixth Division.

Swinton's dispatch was timed after the United States Eighth Army communique released at 8:10 p.m. (5:10 a.m., St. Louis time), which said the Fifth Regiment was attacking a hill lost to the Reds Monday.

In the north above Taegu, 45-ton Pershing tanks drove back a Red assault led by nine tanks in the fourth day of continual thrusts at Allied supply base on the central front.

Correspondent Don Whitehead, with the United States Twenty-Seventh Regiment before Taegu, said American tankmen knocked out two Russian-made T-34 tanks and United States "very polished off two more in a two-hour battle that kicked back a Red battalion.

Then the Americans whirled to knock out the Communist roadblock 10 miles north of Taegu and behind the lines of the Twenty-Seventh Regiment.

Whitehead said infiltrating Reds pinned down the Americans along the mountain road with sniper and machinegun fire. Whitehead was among the Americans trapped under fire until the roadblock was wiped out.

(An International News Service dispatch from Taegu quoted a South Korean army spokesman as saying Red guerrillas were active in the area.)

RUSSIA CALLS U.N. ACTION IN KOREA BLUFF TO COVER U.S. AGGRESSION

Malik, in New Tirade in Security Council, Says Austin Is Not Fooling Anyone in Speaking of Crusade.

By BRUCE W. MUNN
LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Aug. 22 (AP)—Russia charged today that the United Nations war effort in Korea is "nothing more than a colossal international bluff" to cover American aggression.

Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik touched off another propaganda tirade against the United States and, with less harshness, its western partners in the U.N. Security Council. It was the council's first public meeting since last Thursday, and Malik, whose tactics have tied up the 11-nation group in a procedural snarl since Aug. 1, took the floor at the outset for a full-dress speech.

United States Delegate Warren H. Austin and British Delegate Sir Gladwyn Jebb were on the speakers' list ready to reply to Malik when he finished.

"Not Fooling Anyone." Referring to statements made earlier before the Council by Austin, Malik, who broke the Soviet boycott on Aug. 1 to assume the Council presidency for his monthly turn, declared:

"The representative of the United States tried to show that this is a crusade in Korea. Who cannot see that all this talk about U.N. forces is nothing more than a colossal international bluff which has been utilized during the last few weeks by the United States ruling circles? The representative of the United States is not going to fool anyone by this bluff, which long ago was unmasked by Russia and other leading governments."

Malik told the Council: "We should put an end to this bluff. We should force the aggressor to withdraw."

He said that the only way that the Korean conflict can be localized is for the United States to get out of Korea.

Malik, apparently aiming his speech at millions of Asians who have been the target of his three-week anti-American propaganda campaign here, said:

"This is a colonial war against the freedom-loving peoples of Asia and it is now being termed an innocent police action of the U.N. No one believes this."

"The United States has tried to say that not the American people but the troops of the U.N. are fighting. This can be believed only by children, for everybody knows that it is armed intervention and United States military aggression under the order of President Truman and the command of Gen. MacArthur."

"Brutal Invasion." "No tags or titles of the U.N., no U.N. flags, regardless of how many are sent, can hide this brutal aggressive invasion by American troops."

India's delegation yesterday kept up private consultations with other delegates on the general outlines of its proposal to have the Korean question taken over by the six small, elected nations on the Council.

An Indian spokesman said the proposal, still in only the most general terms, may not even be presented formally. The delegation, he said, will not submit a formal resolution covering it until after other delegates hear from their home governments and all possible amendments are considered. That may take a week.

Meanwhile, it was learned that South Korean Ambassador John M. Chang has circulated a letter to U.N. members warning that 400,000 Protestants and 300,000 Catholics in Korea face the danger of genocide at the hands of the Communists. The letter called for immediate ratification of the convention on the prevention and punishment of genocide, which the U.N. has defined as mass murder for political, racial or religious reasons.

FACTORY WORKER EARNINGS HIT NEW HIGHS IN MID-JULY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—A new record peak in weekly earnings of $59.02 for factory workers was recorded in mid-July, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said last night.

The 12,100,000 production workers in manufacturing industries averaged 40.4 hours at work per week during July. This included more overtime work than in any month since the end of 1948.

Preliminary reports indicated that gross hourly earnings for the factory workers as a whole increased more than 5 cents between the summer of 1949 and 1950. The mid-July figure was $1.461.

Although most major industry groups showed slight decreases in the average hours worked, the work week rose in the important ordnance and ordnance accessories group, the report said.

Hours in that industry rose from 40.7 to a new postwar peak of 42.4 hours through July. The surge began just after the North Koreans crossed the thirty-eighth parallel.

COMMUNIST GENERAL KILLED IN CHANGYONG BRIDGEHEAD
PUSAN, Aug. 22 (INS)—The South Korean radio said today that the Defense Minister had confirmed the death in action of Maj. Gen. Pak Sung Suk, commander of Red Korea's Fourth Division.

The announcement said the Communist general was killed Aug. 19 in fighting at the Changyong bridgehead on the Nakdong river.

Accused of Plutonium Theft

Simons, a 28-year-old Denver University scientist assigned to an Army rocket project, is accused of stealing plutonium from the Los Alamos (N.M.) atom-bomb project in 1946. FBI officials said Simons explained he wanted the material as a "souvenir."

Yanks Stop Thrust at Pusan Gateway, Blast Out Roadblock

Five inside the former provisional capital. To these guerrillas were attributed several bomb explosions in the city. Explosions heard in Taegu's outskirts earlier had been attributed to long-range enemy artillery.

Allied intelligence officers said the North Koreans had nine divisions on the winding battlefield which extends from the southern port of Masan north to Waegwan above Taegu and thence east to nine miles north of Pohang.

Much of Front Quiet. Aside from the southern battle and the probing patrols north of Taegu, the rest of the front was quiet Tuesday afternoon.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced its mid-night communique would be omitted as there was no change in the situation.

United Press reported an attack by Twenty-fourth Division troops on a small North Korean bridgehead on the east side of the Nakdong river at Hyonpung, 14 miles southwest of Taegu.

Across from the United States First Cavalry Division, strung along the central front on the Nakdong river, the Reds were trying to mass men and supplies for a surge toward Taegu. American artillery pounded the area across the Nakdong northwest of Taegu.

Northeast of Waegwan, where an estimated 60,000 enemy troops have been massed for a lunge at Taegu, the South Korean First Division gained mountainous ground between Mangjong and Indong. Five disabled North Korean tanks were spotted by South Korean patrols.

East Coast Activity. On the east coast, the South Korean Third Division inched north of Pohang port with cover of United States naval shells. South Korean troops were reported to be nine miles north of the port. The South Korean Capital Division moved north and east from Kigye, nine miles north-west of Pohang.

In the extreme south, Red troops attacked South Korean marines who had advanced 20 miles in four days since landing at Tongyeong. The South Korean amphibious troops were trying to link up their coastal position near Kosong with American forces centered in the Haman-Masan area, 35 miles west of Pusan.

Correspondent Bill Shinn reported South Korean marines aided by United States Air Force men, were cleaning out Red forces that tried to occupy Kojia island south of Chinhae, six miles southeast of Masan. Chinhae is a naval base.

Syngman Rhee at Front. South Korea's President Syngman Rhee revisited the south coastal front around Masan port Tuesday. He had left threatened Taegu with his government last week to set up a new provisional capital behind the fighting front.

West of Haman, a dusty, clapped-out village on the south coast, United States Marine Corsair planes had a field day strafing a large group of Red troops caught in the open.

The Corsairs strafed backward and forward over the crouching troops, inflicting many casualties. Marine carrier-based planes bombed and strafed a Communist command post near Chungchon in the same area.

To cope with the Reds sneaking supplies down numerous west coast channels, a British Sunderland squadron was put on patrol there. The flying boat unit is under the command of Squadron Leader Michael Helme. It formerly was based in Hong Kong.

The Sunderland squadron patrolled from the former Korean naval base at Mokpo, in the deep southwest, as far north as the Manchurian border.

Carrier-based Firefly bombers and Seaforce fighters covered the west coast and inland up the Taedong river to Pyongyang, North Korean capital.

The British planes were credited with sinking a patrol boat and damaging a motor vessel, a small coastal freighter, boxcars, oil tanks and several small craft. East, south and west coast patrols of the United States Navy continued. One east coast patrol bombarded and silenced a North Korean shore battery which had fired on it from Samchok, just south of the thirty-eighth parallel. The United States destroyer escaped damage in the exchange of fire.

Other naval units used their big guns to support South Korean ground troops grinding north from Pohang on the east coast. Red air losses since the beginning of the war were reported to stand at 74 planes. The only Communist plane seen recently was a single-engine Russian fighter spotted Tuesday by pilots. It got away. Announced Allied land-based plane losses totaled 55 warplanes. Most of them were shot down by anti-aircraft or small arms fire.

SUPERFORTS HIT PORT OF CHONGJIN IN 500-TON RAID

Key North Korean Center Bears Second Heavy B-29 Attack Within Four Days.

By CHARLES CORDRY
TOKYO, Aug. 22 (UP)—B-29 Superfortresses dumped more than 500 tons of bombs today on Chongjin (Seishin), key North Korean port and railway center on the arms supply route to the North Korean front.

The raid was the second heavy attack in four days on the city, on the northeast coast of Korea about 60 miles from the Soviet frontier and 148 miles from the big Russian base at Vladivostok.

Waves of B-29s subjected Chongjin's marshaling yards, deep water port and dock facilities and the former Mitsubishi iron works to a one-hour bombardment with 500-pound general purpose bombs. The bombing was primarily by radar because of an overcast. Crews seemed certain they had hit their objectives.

On Saturday, a fleet of more than 60 Superfortresses dropped more than 550 tons of explosives on the rail yards, port facilities and iron works.

In addition to hitting Chongjin today, B-29s dropped 150 tons of explosives on Korean bridges and industrial targets to bring the day's total B-29 bombloads to 700 tons for 70 Superfortresses. One B-29 formation made four bomb runs on Songjin, 130 miles down the coast from Chongjin. Two factories and marshaling yards were the targets there.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said the Fifth Air Force fighters and light bombers had perfect flying weather for the second day in a row and raked the battle area from Pohang on the east coast to Chongjin, on the south coast.

Fifth Air Force fighters and light bombers flew more than 500 sorties against the Communist forces yesterday. They reported damaging nine tanks, 10 trucks and other vehicles, one locomotive and 37 boxcars.

Carrier-based planes destroyed or damaged eight tanks, six buildings, three boxcars, two trucks, an armored car and four artillery positions.

MacArthur's headquarters announced allied planes are dropping millions of leaflets warning inhabitants of specific North Korean cities to flee before they are bombed.

ning of the war were reported to stand at 74 planes. The only Communist plane seen recently was a single-engine Russian fighter spotted Tuesday by pilots. It got away. Announced Allied land-based plane losses totaled 55 warplanes. Most of them were shot down by anti-aircraft or small arms fire.

LAG IN CASUALTY REPORTS UNDER FIRE IN CONGRESS

Senators Admit Public Is In for a 'Rude Shock' on Losses in Korean War.

By BERT ANDREWS
The New York World Telegram-Paul-Duncan Special Dispatch. Copyright, 1950.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 22—Four questions are being raised on Capitol Hill concerning the slowness that has been maintained by the Department of Defense as to total American casualties in Korea.

The question-askers have in mind these facts: It has been exactly two weeks since the military announced any over-all figure.

The figure given then was 2615, including 153 killed, 1590 wounded and 873 missing.

That figure was based on compilations made at the front two weeks earlier, or on July 24. It subsequently was revealed by Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, and confirmed by the Army, that the true figure as of July 24 was close to three times the official figure announced, or somewhere between 7000 and 8000.

That was only for American personnel, and did not include casualties inflicted on the South Koreans who are fighting with the Americans.

So the question-askers on the Hill are busy. A Revealing Paragraph. Curiously in Washington has been aroused by such paragraphs as the following, buried in a dispatch from Tokyo from Keyes Beech, of the Chicago Daily News-St. Louis Post-Dispatch foreign service who has been at the front in Korea:

"The greatest source of anger and frustration here is Washington's apparent refusal to recognize the Korean war as a first-class war."

"It may not be a first-class war in any conventional sense. But Americans are going to be in for a rude shock when they see the casualty figures."

Newspaper reporters who know Beech's reputation as an accurate reporter are aware that he was saying between the lines that he knew what the casualties were, and that the shock when the true number was announced would be "rude," indeed.

Some members of the Senate Appropriations Committee and of other committees ask these questions: How "rude" will the shock be? (The Senators won't say what new figure they have heard but they grimly imply that it is high. This would mean that the casualties now are far beyond the confirmed figure of 7000 to 8000.)

What have been the casualties since the last compilation made on July 24 and announced on Aug. 7? (The "rude" fighting of the last four weeks makes the Senators believe they have been great.)

Does the question of security—the desire to delay announcement of totals to prevent the enemy from knowing how much punishment it has inflicted—entirely justify a delay of four weeks when it can be assumed that the enemy has some idea of how effective it has been? What will be the effect on the American people when casualties withheld for almost four weeks are announced in one lump—if they are announced that way?

Senator Bridges said today: quick passage of the measure "because I believe this is our last chance to get it through Congress."

In the Senate both Democrats and Republicans work in unison intent on pushing through today a bill providing monthly cash allowances for dependents of all enlisted men in the armed services.

The House Armed Services Committee meanwhile approved similar legislation. It first knocked out a guarantee that dependents of service men also would get Government hospital and medical care. Chairman Vinson (Dem.), Georgia, said the medical provision will be introduced immediately as a separate bill. The American Medical Association opposed the provision.

Exemption from income taxes for all pay received by G.I.s while in combat zones and a $200 a month war-area exemption for officers was approved by the Senate Finance Committee. The committee left it to President Truman to define combat areas.

Rural Road Fund Cut. The Senate voted 47 to 37 today to lop $40,000,000 off proposed rural roads funds in a two-year highway authorization bill.

Senator Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, sponsored an amendment to trim the amount back to $135,000,000, the level of previous yearly outlays.

The Senate Public Works Committee previously had approved a $200,000,000 authorization but had agreed to trim this amount to $175,000,000 on Truman's demand for economies.

The Byrd amendment was adopted after the Senate had slapped down, 54 to 26, a proposal by Senator Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, to cut $100,000,000 off the $175,000,000 proposed authorization.

The measure authorizes $1,237,000,000 for federal aid highways and other road construction for a two-year period ending June 30, 1953.

"You can be sure that the Appropriations Committee, when it hears additional testimony on the military establishment's request for higher appropriations for hospital beds, will try to get at the truth."

"I realize that security may justify some delay in announcing casualties. But I don't believe there should be such a delay as to give the American people a false sense of optimism."

"When we read, as we did today, that Communist casualties totaled from 11,000 to 15,000 in the last three days, it makes us wonder how great our casualties were. I think it is time we were being told the blunt truth."

GROUP IN SENATE DEMANDS UMT BILL AT THIS SESSION

Secretary Johnson Testifies Western Europe Could Not Slow Aggression Before U. S. Help Arrives.

Today in Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—

Nine Senators who form more than a majority of the Armed Services Committee, demanded today that Congress stay in session until it approves universal military training legislation.

One by one in brief statements they said that the safety of the nation can be secured only if young men are trained in mass to bear arms.

About the same time Secretary of Defense Johnson told the committee that western Europe lacks sufficient military strength to slow down an aggressor until American help arrives.

He said the United States doesn't now have enough trained men to meet the threat of total war within the time limits which present conditions impose.

Testimony of Bradley. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, also testified that universal military training "is the only satisfactory long range answer" to the need for a reservoir of trained men to meet the "many years of tension in international affairs" that he thinks probably lies ahead after the Korean situation is settled.

He said that "it would be impractical to initiate UMT right now," because of the demands already being made on the armed forces.

"However, if such a law were on our books with provision for initiating it when possible," he said, "we would be in a better position to meet the demands."

The nine Senators who demanded action on UMT included all who were present at the meeting. They were Chairman Tydings of Maryland, and Senators Byrd of Virginia, Chapman of Kentucky, Johnson of Texas, and Hunt of Wyoming, all Democrats, and Senators Gurney of South Dakota, Morse of Oregon, Bridges of New Hampshire and Knowland of California, all Republicans.

Tydings said he would press for since the last compilation made on July 24 and announced on Aug. 7? (The "rude" fighting of the last four weeks makes the Senators believe they have been great.)

ENCIRCLED YANKS AIDED BY PLANES FIGHT OUT OF TRAP

By STAN SWINTON
WITH UNITED STATES TWENTY-FIFTH DIVISION ON THE SOUTHWEST KOREAN FRONT, Aug. 21 (Delayed) (AP)—

Three hundred North Koreans Sunday caught 25 gallant Negro infantrymen and their white captain in a trap.

Although encircled, the small band of Americans didn't give up. Thirteen hours later, with the help of close aerial support, they battled their way to friendly units.

"They (the enemy) were so close we could just about shake hands," said Sgt. Leonard Ford of Philadelphia.

Their air support was probably the closest of the war. Fighter planes swept in so close that one infantryman was wounded, but it checked the onrushing Reds.

Then four minutes after Capt. Lawrence M. Corcoran called his men down from the highest peak, American bombers plastered the area with 500 bombs. Loosened stones injured three more Americans.

"I lost my helmet and was holding a borrowed one over my head when one rock smashed into it. That was really a close one," recalled Corcoran.

The scene was Battle Mountain, two miles southwest of Haman. It has since been regained, lost again, and retaken by the Americans.

UNION MEN BAR SOVIET FURS, BALK AT AIR SHIPMENTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (AP)—Union freight handlers tightened their ocean boycott of Russian-made goods yesterday and spread it to air shipments as well.

Members of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association refused to unload a shipment of Russian furs from the British liner Queen Elizabeth. Last week they turned back two shipments of Soviet-made goods because they said they resented Communist aggression in Korea.

Meanwhile, CIO Transport Workers Union members were ordered not to touch any Russian cargo that comes into this country by air.

"Traffic in Russian furs, crabmeat and any other commodities is helping to hamstring our G.I.s in South Korea," said President Michael J. Quill of the TWU.

A spokesman for the Cunard line said the furs aboard the Queen Elizabeth would be returned to Southampton.

At International Airport, Scandinavian Airlines system said that in the past month it had carried 1500 pounds of furs weekly to New York from Russia, via Helsinki, Finland.

HOODLUMS TOOK OVER CANDY FIRM, FORMER OWNER TELLS SENATORS

Pushed Him Out in Nine Months, Witness Says—Understood 'Boss' of Maneuver Was Frank Costello.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22—A fantastic story of how a group of hoodlums worked their way into ownership of a large legitimate New York candy concern was told Senators today by David Lubben, of Hillsdale, N.J.

Lubben, who formerly owned the company, testified before the Kefauver committee investigating interstate crime. He said he was pushed out of his business in nine months, leaving behind him assets of $940,000. He was given to understand, he testified, that the "boss" of the maneuver was Frank Costello, New York racketeer.

Lubben's troubles started with the war. He formed the Eatsum Food Products Co., too late to get an OPA sugar quota, so that, as he said, it was necessary for him to deal in black market sugar or go out of business.

Tried "Five-Percenters," but they did him no good. He said that he paid $1,000 or $1500 to a man described as an ex-campaign manager for President Truman when Truman was a Missouri Senator, but that any influence with the Administration this man may have had never produced results.

Later Lubben identified the man who was supposed to have been Truman's campaign manager as Victor Messall of Washington. Victor R. Messall, who has a publicity firm here, was Truman's executive secretary from 1935 to 1941.

Lubben said that finally he was introduced to a man named Ronald Stone, whom he later found out was a disbarred lawyer who had been associated with the Dutch Schultz prohibition brewing interests. Stone was valuable in getting supplies, including black market sugar, Lubben went on.

Deal on Sugar Promise. Stone brought in Louis J. Roth, who represented himself as an official of the Doughnut Corp. of America, Lubben said, and related that one of his affiliates had a quota of 14,000,000 pounds of sugar and that he could get a quota for Eatsum.

Lubben, Roth, William J. Giglio and others entered into negotiations and Lubben sold half of his business for about $45,000 and a promise that the new partners would obtain sugar for him. "You couldn't sweeten your coffee with the sugar I got," Lubben said.

One of the new partners, Lubben said, was Frank Livorsi, who previously testified he had been arrested at least 10 times, served a term for narcotics law violation, and had never engaged in a legitimate business.

This took place in the spring of 1948. Lubben said he did not know at first the new partners were hoodlums, but that he soon sensed he was "in trouble." The company moved to Hollywood-type offices, he said, and began to buy corn outright for conversion into sugar. The concern had to pay cash to farmers or grain elevators, and to do this kept as much as $140,000 in a box behind a secret panel in Giglio's office.

Sought Way Out. Lubben said he began "looking for a way out" and proposed that the others partners buy his interest. He said he had the feeling that if he didn't do things their way he might suffer physical harm.

In order to get out, he said, he virtually wrote off the business, "except for some lousy machinery in the Bronx." The company, whose books are being examined by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, had assets estimated by Lubben at $940,000.

"They bought in for $45,000 and in nine months controlled a business with assets of nearly a million," said Chairman Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee. "Now what did you get out of it?"

"A lot of experience," said Lubben. "I was able to sleep again."

STREAMLINED TRAIN REPLACED

The Illinois Terminal Railroad Co. announced today discontinuance of streamlined equipment on the train "City of Decatur," operating between Decatur, Springfield and St. Louis.

Conventional equipment has replaced the streamlined cars and dining service has been discontinued. The southbound train leaves Decatur at 8 a.m., arriving at St. Louis at 9:35 a.m. The northbound train leaves St. Louis at 5:15 p.m. and arrives at Decatur at 8:55 p.m.

SENATE APPROVES
WAGE-PRICE CURBS

Truman discretion to parcel out those two jobs to any of the Government agencies.

Senator Sparkman (Dem., Ala.), chief drafter of the bill, called the amendment and the one eliminating selective wage and price controls "the most damaging of all the changes made."

Sparkman and Douglas both expressed confidence that the two amendments would be eliminated in conference.

The House bill would give the President a free hand to set up the allocation and priorities programs as he sees fit.

The vote on the Senate bill came after eight hours of debate and balloting on about 30 amendments, many of them comparatively minor and technical.

Sparkman said, however, that "it probably will take us a couple of days to analyze the amendments adopted to determine just what effect they would have."

Besides the wage-price-ratting authority and the allocation and priorities powers, the measure provides for:

Control of consumer credit, and credit covering new, construction and major remodeling started after Aug. 3.

2. A bar on hoarding of scarce consumer goods and industrial materials. The President would designate scarce items. Violators would be subject to penalties ranging up to a $10,000 fine and a year in jail.

3. Government seizure of privately-owned plants and other facilities if they were needed in the defense effort. Provision is made for just compensation and return to owners after the emergency.

4. A $2,000,000,000 Government loan and loan guarantee program to encourage defense production.

5. Consideration by the President of the wage and price levels of the period May 24-June 24, 1950, in the fixing of wage-price ceilings. The bill permits but does not require a rollback to that period, with some exceptions which might include all farm commodities.

6. Setting up special machinery for the mediation and arbitration of labor disputes affecting national defense. The procedure would have to be in line with terms of the Taft-Hartley law and other existing labor acts.

7. Exemption from the anti-trust laws and the Federal Trade Act in the case of voluntary agreements entered into by business firms at the request of the President.

All But One in House Bill.

All of those provisions are in the House bill in substantially the same form, with the exception of the section setting up labor dispute machinery. The House struck that out.

Senator Taft (Rep., Ohio), tried to have it removed from the Senate bill, too, but the amendment was rejected, 57 to 29.

Truman did not ask for authority to invoke wage-price controls and rationing, but he said he would be glad to have the stand-by power if Congress did not restrict the use of it. He also has said that he sees no need for using those powers at this time.

Senate Administration leaders protested that Truman certainly would have no free hand under the Wherry-Bricker amendment requiring him to put wage-price controls into effect at the same time and "virtually across the board if he invoked the controls at all.

Senator Douglas said the whole idea of proposing to let the President invoke controls on a selective basis was to permit him to crack down only where there had been runaway prices.

Sparkman said that if the President could do that, "we might never have any need for over-all controls."

The Wherry-Bricker amendment would not restrict Truman in any way with respect to rationing of consumer goods. Nor would it have any effect on a provision which specifically exempts certain items from price control, such as newspaper subscription and advertising rates. The amendment also did not touch another section which gives the President power to order exemptions under certain circumstances.

All of the powers authorized in the Senate bill would remain in effect through June 30, 1952.

Senator Byrd (Dem., Va.), tried to write in a time limit of Aug. 31, 1951, but the Senate rejected the amendment. The House voted an expiration date of June 30, 1951.

Republican Senators Mundt of South Dakota and Ferguson of Michigan, who had threatened to try to write their own Communist bill into the economic controls bill as a rider, withdrew the amendment after Administration leaders scheduled separate Senate action, possibly next week, on Communist-control legislation.

No Speculation Controls.

Neither the House nor the Senate economic control measure provides for compulsory regulation of commodity speculation, as requested by Truman. The House bill does not deal with the matter at all.

The Senate did adopt an amendment by Senator Gillette (Dem., Iowa), which calls for voluntary policing of speculation by the commodity exchanges. If they failed to set up reasonable controls, as determined by the federal courts, the exchanges could be fined up to $500.

Still in the Senate bill are amendments adopted last week which the CIO has said would be likely to cost consumers billions of dollars. One of those provisions would guarantee the meat packing industry a reasonable margin of profit under any price ceilings fixed. Another would do substantially the same thing for the processors of farm commodities.

TO END RAIL ROW,
NEW TALKS START

law. They said they would keep their members at work—and send the strikers back to their jobs—if the Government takes over.

The current dispute, already 17 months old, centers on the two big rail unions' demands for a pay boost for train service employees and a reduced work week, from 48 to 40 hours, without a pay reduction, for yard service workers.

Start of Token Strikes.

The "token" strikes, called by the trainmen's brotherhood and the conductors' union, hit first yesterday at key rail terminals in Louisville and St. Paul and Republic Steel Corp.'s switching terminal at Cleveland.

At Louisville, the strike against the Kentucky & Indiana Terminal railroad made all of the line's 1200 employees idle. The walk-out at Republic's Cleveland terminal led to a layoff of 2500 of the company's 7000 workers. Republic said other layoffs might follow. The union predicted the Cleveland strike might make as many as 30,000 idle in non-rail industries, including steel.

At St. Paul 175 of the Minnesota Transfer Railway's 450 workers struck. The company handles most of the train switching for the St. Paul and Minneapolis.

STRIKE TIES UP
CANADIAN LINES

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 22 (UP)—A nationwide strike by 125,000 non-operating railroad employees halted virtually every train in Canada today, shut down telegraph services and threatened to paralyze the nation's economy.

The strikers, members of two railway brotherhoods and 15 international unions, walked off the job at 6 a.m. They are demanding a 40-hour week and a pay rise. It was the first railroad shutdown in Canadian history.

Telegraph services throughout Canada were shut down because they are operated by the two major railways against which the strike was called—Canadian National and Canadian Pacific. Postal operations also were curtailed by the strike.

that rank would be in action at such a perilous location.

The former interpreter said the Communists took pictures of Dean's body and of him viewing it. He said he was positive of the identification.

Back in United States hands only a few days ago, the former interpreter insisted that Dean's killer had been captured by the Americans and now was a prisoner of war.

Was Military Governor.

Gen. Dean, 50 years old, and a native of Carlyle, Ill., was military governor of South Korea from October 1947 to January 1948. He then took over command of the Seventh Division in Japan. Five months later he was made Chief of Staff of the United States Eighth Army in Japan. In October 1948, he became commander of the Twenty-fourth Division.

A division leader in World War II, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for "extraordinary heroism" and "utter disregard for personal safety" for leading an infantry platoon through an artillery barrage in a mission against enemy batteries in the Enchenberg area of France.

U. N. MEDIATOR UNABLE
DISPUTE OVER KASHMIR

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Aug. 22 (UP).

The United Nations announced today that its mediator has failed to settle the dispute between India and Pakistan about Kashmir.

Sir Owen Dixon, Australian appointed U.N. representative in Kashmir last spring, reported in a communication received here today from Karachi:

"I regret to announce that I have come to the conclusion that there is no immediate prospect of India and Pakistan composing any of their differences over the state of Jammu and Kashmir."

The main point of the dispute is whether Kashmir should join India or Pakistan. Preparations had been made for a plebiscite, but no final agreement on an Indian-Pakistani truce could be reached.

TEXTILE UNION ENDS STRIKE

AT TENNESSEE RAYON PLANT

MORRISTOWN, Tenn., Aug. 22 (AP)—The CIO Textile Workers' Union of America has called off its long, violence-marked strike at the American Enka Corp. rayon plant. However, it plans to push charges of unfair labor practices against the company.

Official termination of the strike was reported at Nashville yesterday by H. S. Williams, state director of the union. The strike started March 28.

Of the contract dispute which led to the strike, Williams said there has been "no settlement at all." He estimated that "12 to 15" of the 433 CIO members still on strike last week had been given their jobs again.

The walkout was called in a dispute over a wage hike and other contract demands. The union said it asked a rise and other benefits amounting to a 33c boost in the $1.35 hourly wage. The company said the demands amounted to 70c an hour.

SIGNS THAT RUSSIA
PLANS TO REOCCUPY
NORTH KOREA AREA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (INS)

The Air Force released information today supporting the belief that the Russians plan to reoccupy North Korea when the military tide turns against the Communists.

A spokesman said heavy construction is underway to build airports that could handle modern jet planes in both the Wonsan and Pyongyang areas of North Korea.

Air observation leaves little doubt that the fields are being built for Russian planes that would move in to provide cover for Soviet troops if and when they return to Korea.

No similar construction is being attempted in South Korea, although Kimpo field near Seoul is the country's best airbase and is nearer present Communist operations.

The possibility that the North Koreans are about to acquire a modern airforce is further discounted on the ground that they could not supply the necessary pilots and mechanics even over a period of months.

APRONS OFF WITH A BANG—WRONG
KIND OF COTTON

TOKYO, Aug. 22 (INS)—When some 30 handlers in Tokyo's vegetable market bought some put-rate aprons from a peddler, they got something they had not bargained for.

Yoshihiko Iwakabe, 28 years old, was the first to find out his apron was a booby trap. When he dropped some cigarette ashes on the apron it went up with a bang. He will be in the hospital for a month with burns. Ten minutes later, Heinosuke Ishiyama, 47, was taken off in an ambulance suffering from painful burns. He also lit a cigarette while wearing his apron.

Police found that the aprons were made from Japanese army war surplus gun cotton.

410 ON EAST SIDE TO TAKE INDUCTION TESTS HERE SOON

Madison, St. Clair County Men Among 1500 Illinoisans to Be Examined Next Month.

Selective service boards in Madison and St. Clair counties on the East Side will send 410 men for pre-induction physical examinations in St. Louis from Sept. 1 to Sept. 15, Col. Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois selective service director, announced at Chicago last night.

The group from the two East Side counties will be among 1500 men from 25 downstate Illinois counties who will report for examinations in St. Louis during the period. A total of 150 men will be processed each day.

The men will be sent from county boards in groups of 50 or fewer five days a week instead of six in order that the numbers may be more easily examined. The physicals, under present plans, will be given at the Army dispensary in the Mart Building, Twelfth boulevard and Spruce streets. The Army does, however, have space available in the Exhibition Hall at Kiel Auditorium and this site may be used.

St. Clair county's quota of 250 men was the largest set by Col. Armstrong's office, with Madison county second with a quota of 160. Sangamon county, with a quota of 150 men, and Saline, with 105, followed in that order. The quota for St. Clair will be made up in six calls and that for Madison in five.

Other quotas: Alexander, 30; Pulaski, 40; Macon, 25; Bond, 20; Fayette, 60; Morgan, 35; Jefferson, 35; Christian, 90; Clinton, 35; Clark, 30; Washington, 65; Edwards, 10; Coles, 30; Franklin, 70; Union, 30; Effingham, 30; Montgomery, 35; White, 55; Perry, 45; Marion, 35, and Massac, 30.

Thirty-four St. Louis policemen, members of the Army reserve 241st Military Police Company, are awaiting a call to active duty, it was learned today.

Police Sgt. Michael Roth, a reserve captain and commander of the company, said the unit was notified last week that it might be re-activated "at any time."

A new enlistment policy for the Marine Corps permits volunteers to serve "for the duration," no matter how long or short a time that may be. Maj. J. E. Fogg, St. Louis Marine recruiting officer, announced today. Men between 18 and 32, who request the volunteer service will be placed on active duty "in excess of 30 days" and sent immediately to training camps. Former Marines re-enlisting under the arrangement will in most cases be given direct assignments.

PERMITS FOR TOURIST COURTS, ZONING CHANGES REQUESTED

Applications for two special permits to establish tourist courts and requests for four changes to commercial zoning will be heard by the St. Louis County Planning Commission at public hearings at Clayton courthouse at 8 o'clock tonight.

Requests will be heard for proposed tourist courts at Lindbergh boulevard and Larkin-Williams road, filed by Alfred P. Taus, and at 3925 Lemay Ferry road, by Mrs. Blanche M. Demaree.

The School District of Fern Ridge is asking a change from residential to commercial zoning for school property on Olive Street road, east of Petzold road. The school district is seeking to sell the property, formerly the two-room Lake School, for commercial purposes. Other changes to commercial zoning sought are: John Frohmann, for an antique shop on Gravois road, west of Sappington road; Albert E. Jones, filling station at Natural Bridge road and Medora avenue; Milford F. Chapman, upholstery shop at Times Beach.

$36,948 U.S. TAX LIENS FILED AGAINST STORE PROPRIETOR

Federal tax liens totaling $36,948 were filed with the St. Louis county recorder of deeds against Walter Newell, proprietor of Newell's Cowboy Store, 1907 South Broadway, by the collector of internal revenue yesterday. The liens were for income tax payments the collector said were not paid in 1944, '45 and '46.

Newell was fined $1000 last March 28 by United States District Judge Roy W. Harper after pleading no contest to two criminal informations charging he had made false statements to the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The statements were made in 1948 in the course of the negotiations of a federal claim of $48,000 in taxes on income received in 1942-43 and penalties on the delinquency.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22 (AP)—Some 35 northern Californians are homeless today, their houses destroyed by fire that blackened nearly 3000 acres of rich redwood timber in Humboldt county. Elsewhere in the state, flames that had charred more than 100,000 acres of tinder-dry brush and forest land seemed to be slackening. Red Cross aid was sent to 12 homeless families about 55 miles south of Eureka. They are being housed in a church. Fire fighters are battling the blaze, most of which is on private timber land.

TRANSPORTATION SHORTAGE TOPIC OF MEETING HERE

Acute Situation Reported in Rail and Trucking Facilities Since Outbreak in Korea.

An acute transportation shortage in both rail and trucking facilities has developed in St. Louis and throughout the country since the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, two transportation leaders said today in calling a meeting of key St. Louis carriers, shippers and receivers to deal with the problem.

The meeting, called by Austin Knetzger, manager of the Association of Team & Truck Owners, and Carl Glessow, traffic director of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in room 200 of the Chamber of Commerce building.

They said an attempt will be made to persuade shippers, receivers and carriers to handle shipments during a full eight-hour day and for at least a half day on Saturday and thus achieve fuller utilization of facilities. Knetzger said some receivers now refuse to accept shipments after 2:30 p.m. He added that some firms have complained that their outgoing freight was not being picked up, while at the same time refusing to accept incoming freight that was tying up trucks and freight cars.

Glessow said the railroads, which will be represented at the meeting Friday, have contributed to the transportation shortage by their failure to purchase adequate new equipment and their rapid retirement of old equipment.

In a letter to the 820 members of the Shippers' Conference Committee of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, Glessow pointed out that railroad freight cars are in possession of shippers and receivers for loading and unloading about 50 per cent of the time. He pointed out that this figure was reduced substantially during World War II through co-operation between shippers and carriers.

Also to be represented at the meeting are truck lines, freight forwarders, the Interstate Commerce Commission and a special committee of the St. Louis East Side Traffic Conference.

NEW ALTON SUIT TO BAR SCHOOL SEGREGATION FILED

An amended petition seeking to enjoin distribution of $288,000 annually in state aid to Alton schools, because of segregation practiced in the district, was filed in Madison county circuit court at Edwardsville today. The suit also asked that J. B. Johnson, superintendent of Alton schools, be removed from office.

Petitioners were nine Negro adults and eight children. They said they represented the interests of 175 Negro pupils who sought to enroll in elementary and junior high schools normally attended only by white students. The suit asked that an injunction be issued against Alton school authorities directing them to "cease and desist from excluding students from any school on the basis of race or color." Defendants named were Johnson; George Wilkins, county superintendent of schools; Clayton Schlosser, president; and H. Edward Meyer, Robert L. Goulding, Dr. Frank Morrison and Eugene K. Elfen, members of the Alton school board, and George L. Davis and Charles Nevitt, former members.

STRIKE BY LABORERS HALTS BUILDING IN ALTON, WOOD RIVER

Construction in the Alton-Wood River area was halted today by a strike of about 350 members of Local 218 of the AFL Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union.

The laborers have sought increases of 50 cents an hour for hod carriers and 25 cents an hour for other members in negotiations carried on for two months with the Construction Employers Council of Alton and Wood River. The hourly rate for hod carriers now is $2 and for laborers $1.75.

An offer of an hourly increase of 12½ cents now and 12½ cents Jan. 1, providing all old jobs are completed by Nov. 1, was made by the employers. The old contract expired last midnight. Federal and state conciliators are participating in negotiation sessions.

After the thief broke away and fled Hugh Little, 1416B North Sixteenth street, discovered that $1 had been stolen from his pocket. The Negro was described as 30 years old and of medium height.

Red Tank-Led Attack Stopped In Its Tracks by Yanks at Taegu

Some Enemy Infantry Get Close Enough to Trip Flares and Are Promptly Slaughtered.

By HOMER BIGART
The New York Herald Tribune Staff Writer
Special Radio Correspondent, 1950 KOREA, Aug. 21 (Delayed)—The main North Korean Communist offensive from the north toward Taegu appeared today to have been stopped in its tracks by resolute and gallant fighting by the United States Twenty-seventh Regimental Combat team.
Again last night, this seemingly tireless outfit, which has performed magnificently in a number of critical engagements during recent weeks, threw back a tank-led attack by the Communists. It is co-operating with South Korean forces on the northern front in the defense of Taegu.
The Communist attack last night was preceded by enemy artillery fire. A few of the enemy infantry got close enough to the American lines to stumble over trips which set off flares, and they promptly were slaughtered.
Enemy Exploits Gap.
On the right flank, the enemy had managed to exploit a gap between the Americans and the South Koreans and had slid a large body of troops, estimated at possibly a battalion, down a densely wooded ridge.
The successful rally was led by two tank officers, Capt. Otis D.

Saum of Waterbury, Conn., and Lt. William J. Hennessy of Forest Hills, Queens, N.Y., and First Lt. Donald F. Donnell of Winside, Nehr, who commanded about 20 infantrymen who rode on the outside of the tanks.
"We had been bothered for the last two nights by tanks coming out of that village," said Lt. Col.
Gilbert J. Check of Coronado, Calif., commander of the First Battalion.
"We kept plastering the village with air and artillery. But last night we heard the whirling and clanking as they came out again.
We figured they had a cave or some other place where they holed up during the day. Anyhow they were disturbing our sleep, so we sent out a patrol to find their hideout."
Red Infantry Flees.
The patrol met little resistance as it entered the village. The only inhabitant found there, a woman, said about 320 Red infantry had fled as the American tanks approached.
At the edge of the village the tanks drew some 20-mm. anti-tank fire until Capt. Saum spotted the enemy gun emplacement, which was concealed against an embankment, and blew it to bits with the gun of his tank. Later it was found that four enemy shells had struck the tank but had made only slight dents in its armor.

The American infantrymen scrambled off the tank as soon as the enemy opened fire and took cover in a ditch.
To halt that crowd, the commander of the Twenty-seventh Regimental Combat Team, Col.
John N. Michaels of Lancaster, Pa., and his staff officers devised a novel method of directing air strikes by artillery fire.
It was a clear night but moonless. The American guns fired white phosphorus shells at regular intervals. While the fragments of these shells were still sputtering, American planes came in and made strafing runs.
Graveyard of Armor.
The burned-out village of Kum-hwa, which lies deep in a valley between forest ridges, is now a graveyard of North Korean armor. From a slope south of the village, this correspondent could see three burned-out enemy tanks, two destroyed self-propelled guns and some abandoned motor trucks.
During the day, a strong American combat patrol escorted by two Pershing tanks went into the village to make certain that none of the enemy armor could be salvaged by the Reds. They found, in addition, two more abandoned trucks and made junk of them before withdrawing to the American lines without having suffered a single casualty.
When the enemy gun was silenced, the patrol proceeded into the village and made a careful search for the enemy's tank hideout. It turned out to be the village schoolhouse courtyard, enclosed by a high stone wall.

Nestling against the wall was a Russian-made tank, its muzzle pointing down the road. The tank had been "buttoned up" and abandoned. Some mechanics' tools scattered on the ground indicated the Reds had been attempting to repair it.
Capt. Saum's Pershing tank stuck its muzzle past the entrance gate to the courtyard and let the Russian tank have an armor-piercing shell from a range of 40 yards.
White phosphorus shells then were thrown into the schoolhouse.
Inspection of the other enemy tank and two tracks vehicles showed that they had been effectively destroyed by artillery or air strikes.
While returning to the American lines, the patrol came under some ineffectual small-arms fire.
Netherlands Dock Strike Ends.
ROTTERDAM, The Netherlands, Aug. 22 (AP)—A dock workers' strike for higher wages, involving some 10,000 men, ended today. All men resumed work at the pre-strike conditions.

IN THE BRITISH WEST INDIES
SAN JUAN, P. R., Aug. 22 (AP)— A rapidly developing hurricane threatened islands in the British West Indies today and churned slowly westward in the Northeast Caribbean.
The weather bureau here said little information was available from the hurricane area, but that its position was estimated to be about 30 miles southeast of St.
Kitts, British West Indies.
The storm, with winds up to about 100 miles an hour near the center, was apparently moving along a westerly course at about six to eight miles an hour.
At the same time the season's first tropical storm, spawned in the same general area 10 days ago, blew itself out over Nova Scotia where crops, communications and harbors suffered an estimated $1,000,000 damage. Two Nova Scotia fishing vessels carrying a total of about 50 crewmen were missing.

Army's New 'Secret Weapon,' 3d Combat Engineer Battalion

Group, in Action Since Kum River Stand, Plays Varied Role, Including Fighting, in War Operations.

By JACK BURNBY
WITH TWENTY-FOURTH DIVISION IN KOREA, Aug. 22 (UP)

The Army unveiled a new "secret weapon" today that lays mines, builds bridges, blows them up under fire, evacuates troops, turns into infantry and under pressure, roams enemy territory on combat patrols.

The "secret weapon" is known officially as the Third Combat Engineer Battalion, a group of hard-fighting, hard-working 20-year-olds whose presence in Korea until now has been labeled "top secret." They have been in the thick of the action since the Kum River line crumbled.

They were still in the thick of the fighting the day I visited them. On that particular day they were frontline infantrymen.

Pfc. Lee Ellison, of Deer Lodge, Mont., summed up the Korean history of the outfit this way: "It's been pure hell. Too much running. We're all right now, though."

At Taejon it was the last American force to withdraw. That was where Pfc. Kenneth Lavrenz of Camelsport, Wis., backed a truck full of ammunition into a tank full of Communist crewmen making frantic efforts to crawl out of their tank. Lavrenz ran about 15 yards and hit the dirt before the ammunition blew up, taking the tank with it.

Lt. Col. Marvin Heiser is battalion commander. He leads his men on patrols and his command posts are so far up the rest of the division calls them observation posts.

RUSSIA ANNOUNCES NEGRO GIRL TO PLAY PLANS FOR HUGE FOR U.S. TENNIS POWER PROJECT TITLE; FIRST OF RACE

MOSCOW, Aug. 22 (AP)—The Council of Ministers has announced that it intends to build within the next five years one of the biggest hydroelectric stations in the world. Work will start this year, the announcement said.

The tremendous project—it would be bigger than the American Grand Coulee and much bigger than the great Dnepr hydroelectric power project which was built by Russia with the aid of American engineers—is to be constructed on the Volga in the Kuybyshev region.

Its announced purpose is, among other things, to furnish power to major cities such as Moscow, Kuybyshev and Saratov. It also will give a large amount of power for further electrification of the Soviet Union's railways and provide water for irrigating the productive trans-Volga agricultural lands.

The dam also will be a means of improving the big Russian river as one of the Soviet nation's main transport arteries.

OPERATOR OF JUNK YARD SLUGGED, ROBBED OF $300

Samuel Boronstein, operator of a junk yard at 2405 Biddle street, suffered a head injury today when he was slugged by a man from whom he had bought some rags. Boronstein reported his assailant, a Negro, stole his wallet containing about $300.

Boronstein, who is 62 years old and lives at 808 Leland avenue, University City, is in City Hospital.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (UP)—The United States Lawn Tennis Association last night announced the acceptance of 52 players' entries to compete for the women's singles title in the National Tennis championships at Forest Hills, N.Y.

Among those accepted was 22-year-old Althea Gibson of New York, who thus will become the first Negro ever to play in the national championships.

"Miss Gibson was accepted on her ability," said a spokesman for the United States Lawn Tennis Association in announcing the selections. "The selection committee considered her record strong enough for her to compete for the national title."

Forty-four of the players accepted are Americans, three are from England, two from Bermuda, and one each from Italy, France, and Venezuela.

ON FIGHT FOR CLOSED SHOP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Delegates to the AFL printers convention yesterday cheered their lawyers for their three-year fight to preserve the union's traditional closed-shop arrangement against the closed-shop bar of the Taft-Hartley Act.

President Woodruff Randolph of the International Typographical Union and the ITU's Washington attorneys, Gerhard P. Van Arkel and Henry Kaiser, outlined steps of their long legal battle with Robert Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

"I think most of the publishers of the nation have concluded they can't break the ITU with the Taft-Hartley Act," Randolph said.

The delegates also heard AFL president William Green call on organized labor to "give Congress a good house-cleaning" in this fall's elections.

MART BUILDING DEPOT

Plan to Move Medical Laboratory From Ft. Sheridan to St. Louis Disclosed.

Plans of the Army to transfer its medical laboratory from Fort Sheridan, Ill., to the Missouri Medical Depot in the Mart Building, were made public today at Washington.

The plan to transfer the laboratory to St. Louis was announced at a Senate hearing on an appropriation of $125,000 to cover the cost of moving personnel and equipment from Fort Sheridan.

It was explained that St. Louis is more centrally situated in the Fifth Army area and there will be a considerable saving of time through sending specimens here for analysis, rather than to Fort Sheridan at Chicago.

Officers at the medical depot said the move had been contemplated for several months, and that space will be available for the laboratory in the Mart building, which is Government-owned. The local officers said they had no information as to the number of individuals or the quantity of equipment to be brought here.

Atom Bomb Resistant Buildings
 CANBERRA, Aug. 22 (UP)—

CALIFORNIA, U.S. EXTEND PACT ON USE OF TIDELANDS

Secretary of Interior Gets More Authority on Oil Leases Under New Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—
 The new one-year agreement for
 merged oil fields off California—giving the Federal Government greater authority—has been signed by California and the Federal Government.

Attorney General McGrath and Secretary of the Interior, Chapman, jointly announced that the stipulation with the state, for operation of petroleum drilling along the California coast, has been extended and will continue in effect until Oct. 1, 1951.

The new stipulation departs from earlier agreements, and from the current agreement expiring next Sept. 29 in these major respects:

1. It gives the Secretary of the Interior authority to initiate new leasing programs. Heretofore he could merely pass on proposals by the state. The new agreement allows him to call on the state to initiate a leasing program which he considered advisable.

2. It gives the Secretary authority to exercise a veto power as to terms and provisions of new leases.

3. Regarding current leases, the Secretary can veto any extensions or modifications of leases.

4. Starting Oct. 1, all rentals, royalties, and other payments received under the leases will be paid by the state to the United States quarterly instead of being retained by the state as is now the case. The Secretary of the Interior must deposit these receipts in a special fund. Revenues already collected by California under the existing and former agreements totaling about $25,000,000—remain in the state's special fund.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1947 that the Federal Government rather than the state has paramount rights in the three-mile marginal belt along the California coast.

The first stipulation between the state and the Federal Government resulted from the state's contention that certain submerged oil-producing areas along the coast were covered by inland waters of the state, and were not within the marginal sea.

The original stipulation and its annual extensions were executed to prevent interruption of oil production from the disputed areas while further court proceedings were under way. These supplementary court proceedings are still pending before a master appointed by the Supreme Court.

When the dispute over the three-mile marginal belt is finally settled, the money in the two special funds will be distributed in accordance with the court's decision.

ISRAEL REFINERIES TO REOPEN WITH OIL FROM U.S., BRITAIN

TEL AVIV, Aug. 22 (AP)—The big Haifa oil refineries are going back into operation soon, with supplies coming from American and British oil companies.
 These refineries have been closed down since the 1948-49
 Arab-Jewish war, because Iraq cut off the flow of oil from fields there into Israel by pipeline. The problem was further aggravated by Egypt's refusal to permit passage through the Suez canal of oil tankers bound for Haifa or any other Israeli port.

The Israelis finally decided to do something about it. They sent their ace trouble-shooter, David Horowitz, on oil buying missions to the United Kingdom and the United States.
 British oil companies, not named here, are to supply 65 per cent of Israel's oil needs. The balance will come from United States companies.

 Horowitz, economic adviser to the government, announced the

MISS COCHRAN SAYS SOME IN EMBASSIES VANISH IN RUSSIA

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (AP)— Flyer Jacqueline Cochran, returning yesterday from a trip to Moscow, said the United States Embassy there required Americans to travel in pairs, sometimes foursomes—as a safety measure.
 Members of some other embassies in Moscow have "disappeared," she told reporters as she debarked from the liner Queen Elizabeth. The trip to Moscow was part of a pleasure tour through various countries.

The flyer, wife of Floyd Odlum, manufacturer, said she found Russia "permeated by fear."

She said, however, that as a guest of United States Ambassador Alan G. Kirk she was permitted to travel to the grave of Leo Tolstoy, Russian writer, 180 miles from Moscow.

Visitors ordinarily cannot go more than 25 miles from Moscow without special permission, she said.

Describing shopping in Moscow, she said a restaurant charged her $20 for a meal that would cost about $2.50 in the United States. An ice cream cone cost the equivalent of about 75 cents in American money, she said.

TWO GIRLS KILLED IN MISSOURI BLAST

Explosion, Fire Level 3 Buildings in Springfield's Downtown Section.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Aug. 22 (AP)—Two little girls were killed today when an explosion and fire which leveled three buildings and badly damaged a fourth in Springfield's downtown section.

The blast, believed to have been caused by gas, shattered every window in the block and some at least two blocks away. It occurred just before 2 a.m., a block north of the public square on Booneville.

Killed were Dorothy, 10 years old, and Charlotte, 7, daughters of Lloyd Mackey, 39, operator of a second-hand store in one of the destroyed buildings. Mackey and a son, Jack, 12, escaped.

Mackey, who is divorced, and his children were asleep when the explosion rocked the downtown section. The father said he last saw his daughters on a pallet on the floor with bricks from the wrecked building on them.

"The bricks fell down on them," Mackey said. "I couldn't get to them. Fire was spurring in and they were under all of that."

The buildings destroyed were occupied by Sandy's Cafe, operated by Ray Sutton; the Dixie Cream Doughnut Shop, operated by Joseph W. Hughlett, and the store operated by Mackey.

New Belleville Fire Captain.

John Wade, a member of the Belleville Fire Department for 19 years, was promoted to the rank of captain yesterday by the newly established Board of Police and Fire Commissioners. The promotion, first to be made by the board, was based on competitive tests. Wade succeeds Capt. Henry C. Schildroth who retired.

FLYING ANTS CHASE STEEPLEJACKS OFF CATHEDRAL SPIRE

SALISBURY, England, Aug. 22 (AP)—Thousands of flying ants forced steeplejacks down from the 404-foot spire of Salisbury cathedral yesterday.

The steeplejacks were repairing the tip of the spire when the ants descended on the same spot. Alfred Wallbridge, crew foreman, said:

"We were outnumbered. We were stung plenty and had to retire three hours before quitting time."

VILLAGE SEEKS INCORPORATION

A petition seeking incorporation of the Village of Hanley Downs was filed in St. Louis County Court today by representatives of the 135 residents of the area, who say they wish police and fire protection and other municipal services.

The area is bounded by Pennsylvania avenue, Teal avenue, Ruddy lane and the Union Electric powerline right-of-way. The date for a hearing on the request will be announced later.

500 SANITARIANS REGISTERING FOR ANNUAL CONVENTION HERE

About 500 experts in public health and sanitation from all parts of the United States began registering at the Hotel Jefferson today for the fourteenth annual convention of the National Association of Sanitarians.

The national board of directors, composed of the presidents of 50 state sections, met this afternoon and the first convention session will open tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Edward McLarty Sr. of the Los Angeles (Calif.) county health department, is president of the national organization. He said delegates will discuss the after-effects of atomic radiation among other subjects. The general theme of the convention is "Co-operation With Industry."

HIGH SCHOOL COURSE TO OFFER ACTUAL WORKING EXPERIENCE

High school seniors in the Maplewood-Richmond Heights and Webster Groves school districts will be given the opportunity this fall to take a course in "diversified occupations," under which 15 hours of actual work is required each week in the student's chosen field.

Under the plan, students will be required to work 10 hours a week during school hours and five hours after school. Those electing the course, who must be 16 years of age, will be dismissed from regular classes at 12:45 p.m. daily.

A similar program is in operation in the Ritenour, University City, Normandy and Affton districts, as well as in 67 other Missouri districts having high schools. The course is sponsored by the State Department of Education. About 200 students in St. Louis county are expected to be engaged in the program this year.

U.S. 24TH DIVISION TAKES REST AFTER NAKTONG VICTORY

Infantrymen Sing for First Time After 51 Days of Blazing Frontline Action.

By JACK BURBY
WITH TWENTY-FOURTH DIVISION ON NAKTONG FRONT, Aug. 22 (UP)—The bloody Twenty-fourth Division celebrated its fifty-first day of blazing frontline action Monday by finishing off its bitterest enemy—the elite North Korean Fourth Division that once threatened to wipe it out.

Today the Twenty-fourth, the division that bore the full brunt of the early Communist invasion of South Korea, took a rest—a rest that was sweeter because it was the rest of victorious troops who refused to acknowledge defeat when it stared them in the face.

They were taking advantage of the respite they had won by taking everything the enemy had to offer and they slugging back though the odds were five-to-one against them and the North Koreans were perilously close to realizing their boast.

Soldiers Sing.
You could hear some of the infantrymen singing today. Their voices were tired and a little off key, but it was the first time any of them had anything to sing about in a long long time. Reports of Communist troops massing in the north threatened to cut short their rest, but today they were a tired and happy bunch.

The fighting was over in the Changnyong bulge for the time being, though, and for the first time since July 2 the Twenty-fourth Division could look back and think about home or sing the songs that were popular when they were thrown into action, or simply just flop on the ground and sleep.

Some riflemen still stalked the rugged Korea hills for remnants of the 10,000 Communists who nine days ago had the Twenty-fourth Division by the throat. But only about 150 Reds still remain on this side of the river in this area, an Army spokesman said.

Red Losses.
Some of the North Koreans escaped, but 60 per cent of them—6,000—were killed, wounded or captured. The Reds lost much arms and ammunition and it was believed they would be out of action for at least a week.

Just nine days ago the situation for the Twenty-fourth was so critical that its cooks and bakers were in battle against a battalion of Communists who had drifted through the front lines almost to the doorstep of the division's command post.

They fought for 36 hours before infantrymen streamed in to take over and wipe out the enemy battalion.

On the morning of Aug. 15 a task force composed of the Ninth Regimental combat team of the Second Division and elements of the Twenty-fourth opened the second day of an attack on the Communists and regained the ground they had lost the day before.

Reinforcements Arrive.

On Aug. 16 both sides held their positions and American reinforcements arrived to bring the division to nearly full fighting strength for the first time since it arrived in Korea.

The next morning the infantry and marines started forward, stalled, dug in and moved forward again. They didn't stop until they reached the banks of the Naktong and mopped up troop remnants Sunday and Monday.

Monday night there was peace in the Twenty-fourth Division camps for the first time in 50 days.

"I never heard it so quiet," one soldier said.

180 EAST REICH POLICE SAID TO HAVE FLED SINCE WAR

BERLIN, Aug. 22 (AP)—United States officials say 180 East German people's police have deserted and asked for asylum in West Berlin since the Korean war started eight weeks ago.

Many of them explained they feared they would be sent to North Korea to help the Communist army, American public safety authorities said.

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press.

She Wants to Pay More.

DECATUR, Ill.—A woman tenant walked into the Decatur rent control office and said she wanted to pay her landlord more money. Rent Director C. C. Martin gasped, asked her to repeat. Yes, the woman, whose name wasn't disclosed, wanted her rent boosted $17.50 a month, to $75. She explained that she felt her landlord wasn't getting enough rent for the place and that she was afraid he'd sell it.

Martin thumbed through the files and advised her to have the landlord follow the usual proceedings—let him ask for the increase.

Crime Ruining Business.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—Burglars held their breath when the F. C. Anderson patent medicine store and got $500 worth of loot. Anderson said he also has been held up 19 times during his 27 years in business and declared:

"Crime is practically putting me out of business."

Intelligence Test.

"Now do it backwards," instructed a recruiter.

The applicant spun about so that his back was toward the eye chart.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright, 1950.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—United States District Judge Ernest W. Gibson, ruling that "pain inflicted on an individual which is caused by the wrongdoing of another is no less to a poor man than to a millionaire," denied yesterday a motion to set aside a judgment of $115,000 to the widow and children of James E. Naylor, 35-year-old seaman. Naylor died in October, 10 hours after a fall from the forecastle of the freighter Alleghany Victory.

The jury gave Mrs. Naylor $40,000 for her husband's suffering during the 10 hours before he died; $15,000 each for Mrs. Naylor and her daughter, Tanya, 15, and $45,000 for their son, James Ronald, 14.

Judge Gibson commended the jury for its award, and added: "In the absence of impenetrable, passion, partiality or corruption—and there is none evident in this case—I am not one to say that a terrible pain inflicted on a seaman for 10 hours is not worth $40,000 when a jury of free men and women calmly, carefully and deliberately so decide."

The Isthmian Steamship Co. sought to have the judgment set aside on the ground it was excessive.

PLAQUE FOR KATHY FISCUS DEDICATED AT HOSPITAL

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22 (AP)—A plaque in memory of Kathy Fiscus was dedicated in Children's Hospital yesterday.

The parents of the girl who fell to her death in a San Marino well were spectators as her sister, Barbara, 10 years old, unveiled a bronze marker reading:

"Kathy Fiscus, Aug. 21, 1945-April 8, 1949, in whose memory eternal vigilance in the field of child safety is hereby dedicated." Contributions from 20,000 persons were received by the parents, which has $3732 left after plaque and turned over to the hospital, expenses.

VOLCANOES SAID TO HAVE ERUPTED AFTER INDIA QUAKE
CALCUTTA, India, Aug. 22 (AP)—Reports from the Lakhimpur and Sadiya districts of north-eastern India today said a red glow had been observed in the sky over the area stricken by last week's severe earthquake. Geologists interpreted this as meaning volcanoes had burst forth. The quake was reported to have cracked a dam on the upper reaches of the Brahmaputra river, threatening severe floods in the northern part of Assam province. Logs extending for many miles up the river were observed floating past Dibrugarh on the Brahmaputra. Despite the severity of the quake, the number of fatalities reported still stands at 20.

MICKEY ROONEY ALIMONY SUIT
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22 (AP)—Mickey Rooney is behind his alimony says his ex-wife No. 2, Betty Jane Rase, who sets the figure at a specific $3541.64. The former Miss Birmingham declared in a petition filed yesterday that Rooney has violated a court order granting her $12,500 a year alimony, plus $5000 annually for the support of their two boys. Rooney previously was wed to Ava Gardner and is now the husband of actress Martha Vickers.

Exercise 'Sanlu,' Field Problem Begun by Army Reservists Here

Servicemen Faced With Tasks of Running Government of an Occupied City, Atomic Defense.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.) Exercise "Sanlu," a 10-day field problem designed to familiarize members of the 307th Military Government Group with the task of running the government of an occupied city, was well under way here today, with 14 teams of Army Reserve officers assigned to see what makes St. Louis tick and then, in theory, run the show themselves. The reservists, about 55 St. Louis area officers and enlisted men, also will work closely with city officials on a second phase of the problem—what to do if an atomic bomb were exploded 2000 feet above Union Station next Monday at 8 a.m. City officials, including Frank D. Sullivan, civil defense co-ordinator, will be given copies of the reservists' solution for use in defense precautions now being planned. "Chaotic" Capital. For purpose of the exercise, St. Louis is given the name "Sanlu" and is assumed to be capital of a territory called "Mesouria," which was invaded by United States forces. The capital is reported in "chaotic condition," with civil government disrupted, communications partly destroyed and public health seriously jeopardized. Moreover, some law enforcement agencies exist, but looting and fifth column activity is reported and potential enemy forces in undetermined strength are available for further assault and attack by air, land and water. The enemy, in the problem, "Hosotilla," has just been thrown back from an unprovoked aggression in Mesouria not unlike that of the North Korean. With this estimate of the situation, Col. Arthur W. Jacobs, the 307th's commanding officer, ordered an immediate survey of existing facilities for feeding, clothing and housing the city's population and preparation of a plan for organizing and governing the city. This must be completed by Friday at 6 p.m. Teams in Action. Teams of from two to five officers set out at once yesterday after Col. Jacobs gave the order. For example, Col. John W. Claiborne, a medical officer and manager of the Veterans Hospital at Jefferson Barracks, moved over to City Hall for a conference on health problems with a "loyal" Sanlu official, Health Commissioner J. Earl Smith. Maj. John J. Walsh, heading another team, drove out to inspect the water works at Chain of Rocks, while others moved into the Federal Building, the various court buildings and headquarters of the American Federation of Labor. The city's food supply was checked with Associated Grocers, business with the Chamber of Commerce and public utilities both at City Hall and offices of the gas, electric and telephone companies. Col. Jacobs, Col. Claiborne and Lt. Col. William L. Weiss, group executive, visited Mayor Joseph M. Darst. The Mayor appeared to be loyal. Visits to various religious or-

PARK POOL CASE DISMISSED
A charge of general peace disturbance against Louis Sachsenheimer, 1524 East Obea street, who was arrested July 21 in connection with a disturbance at Fairgrounds Park, was dismissed today. Police testified in Police Judge John Lee Waechter's court that Sachsenheimer was one of several persons who made inflammatory remarks when Negro swimmers left the Fairground pool. The only statement attributed directly to the defendant, however, were the words, "There they go."

REDS REPORT 11,582 U.S. BOMB CASUALTIES

11 Industrial Plants Destroyed in North Korea, Broadcasters Say.

TOKYO, Aug. 22 (AP)—The Red Korean radio in a puzzling broadcast said today Allied bombing had killed or wounded 11,582 civilians and destroyed 11 important industrial plants. The broadcast reported half of the casualties were killed. It said 16,504 houses had been damaged between July 1 and Aug. 3.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said a 14,000-word report on the bombings is being broadcast in daily installments from North Korea. If true, the accounts of destruction to industrial areas are vitally important to United Nations Forces Intelligence.

The broadcast listed as "out of operation" the Pyongyang railway factory, Pyongyang spinning mills, Pyongyang machine tool plant, Pyongyang soybean plant, Wonsan and Nampo oil refineries, Hungnam fertilizer factory, Honsu carbide factory, Yongsan machine tool plant, Sarawan spinning mills and Nampo shuryards.

One theory advanced at headquarters for Red admission of this damage was that the North Koreans hoped the Allies would discontinue bombings. Another possible reason, officers said, was that "North Koreans may be trying to arouse sympathy among other Asiatic nations."

Truck Driver Robbed of $30.
John Randazzo, a truck driver, 2011A Bissell street, reported to police he was robbed of $30 yesterday by a Negro, who pointed a pistol at him when he was making a delivery at the rear of 1601 Cass avenue.

PERMIT OF HARRIS CAB CO. REINSTATED BY SERVICE BOARD

A permit to operate nine taxicabs, held by Ezra Harris, Negro, head of the Harris Cab Co., was reinstated today by the Board of Public Service, on recommendation of Frank Kriz, director of streets and sewers. The permit was revoked last week by the board because the company had failed to file reports required by city ordinance.

Kriz said representatives of the firm met with him and with Charles Genter, traffic commissioner, and agreed to file reports on time in the future. Specifically involved in the action against the company was its failure to file reports listing drivers. The traffic department has been concerned about frequent arrests of cab drivers for traffic violations, Kriz said. The Harris firm also had failed to file reports on inspections of its vehicles.

UNAUTHORIZED STRIKES CLOSE 3 DETROIT CHRYSLER PLANTS

DETROIT, Aug. 22 (AP)—Unauthorized strikes by CIO United Auto Workers closed three plants of the Chrysler Corp. here today.

Pickets kept 2700 from reporting to the Highland Park plant, and 690 were kept from the Warren avenue plant. At the De Soto Wyoming plant, 2800 walked out. Apparently in sympathy, Chrysler has 16 Detroit plants employing 87,000.

Two hundred employees walked out at Highland Park yesterday in protest against a new worker being put on the job at a rate five cents an hour below the rate previously paid a worker transferred from the same job.

Norman R. Matthews, UAW regional director, said Packard and union negotiators are making progress on a new wages and pensions contract. The Packard strike now is in its eighth day.

Quoth
Mr. Ray Ven...

Once while Ray was longly talking Suddenly he heard a squawking...
It was his dear wife remarking*
On his conversation spree.

"Ray," she said, "you really should Space your calls so others could Use the party line....It would Be fairer then, you see.

"Too, other users might get sore
If you talk for evermore...."
Quoth then Ray Ven, "Nevermore Will I so careless be."

Good party-line neighbors allow time Between calls. That gives other people on the line a chance to use it. Party-line service is best when everyone gets his turn to call—or be called.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

On the Other Foot

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As a longtime subscriber to, and an avid reader of the Post-Dispatch, I noted with considerable interest the editorial entitled "Defying the People." In that editorial, the St. Louis transit company was taken to task for refusing to accept the recommendations of the public hearing panel set up under the King-Thompson Act.

Presumably, the Post-Dispatch stands for the same principle when the shoe is on the other foot and it is the union, not the company, which is refusing to accept the recommendations of such a panel. We have that problem in Kansas City.

Last autumn, a controversy developed between the union here (which is affiliated with the same international organization as the St. Louis transit union) and the Kansas City transit company over wages and working conditions. When no settlement was reached, the State intervened under the King-Thompson Act and set up a public hearing panel, headed by Judge Sam C. Blair of Jefferson City (who was selected by the parties and not by the State).

After comprehensive hearings, that panel submitted its report and recommendations including one for a wage decrease of 5 cents per hour, based upon findings that Kansas City transit wages had more than kept pace with economic trends, and that the company was no longer able to pay those rates.

The company forthwith offered, and still offers, to accept the recommendations of the panel in their entirety, adverse as well as favorable; but the union refused to do so, still refused to do so, and threatened to strike if those recommendations were effectuated, basing its refusal upon the union's policy never to give up any concession once received.

In consequence, on April 30 the State of Missouri seized and has since operated the property of this company, with the wages, rates and the working conditions then prevailing, that seizure being only valid because of the refusal of one of the parties—in this case the union—to accept and abide by the recommendations of the panel.

Thus, with a precedent set in Kansas City by the same affiliated union for rejection of the recommendations of a public hearing panel, it is understandable that the St. Louis transit management may not attribute any great sanctity thereto.

In this line of business we are regulated as a monopoly, but have the fierce competition of the unregulated private automobile. We must, unfortunately, face the facts of life and not operate on theories. One economic fact of life—applicable to local transit as well as to any other business—is that income must at least equal outgo; and no amount of socialistic philosophizing, such as was contained in the St. Louis panel report, can make it otherwise.

Protests Will Be Filed

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Interested organizations and individuals in the St. Louis area who wish to file a letter of protest against the building of high dams on the Current river may do so by addressing their communications in quadruplicate (four copies) to the Arkansas-White-Red Basins Inter-Agency Committee, and mailing them to E. Edward Budde, 6639 South Kingshighway boulevard, St. Louis 9, Mo. Residents in the Doniphan area may do so by mailing their protest to T. L. Wright Jr., Doniphan, Mo.

Representatives of the Current River Chapter, Ozark Protective Association, who will be present at the hearing on Aug. 25 in Poplar Bluff, will file the protests in the records. Please send four copies of the protest should be sent.

No Superman

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your editorial "Liability or Asset?" really took the props from under the idea that Gen. MacArthur is a superman, or even an imitation of one.

This has long been needed, and the American people must bring pressure to bear on the President and Congress to remove him and send any one of a dozen better-qualified men to take over. The result of not doing so may mean the loss of the Korean war and possibly the onset and eventual loss of World War III.

You noted that both the Democratic and Republican parties are reported to be laying claim to MacArthur for political reasons. Every reader should clip this editorial and read it three times a day before meals. Every reader should also remember that the apathetic attitude of the President, Congress and the American people may lead to chaos and disaster.

This is no time to use four-dollar words that say nothing. It is time for every patriotic American citizen to demand that the President and Congress quit playing politics and get down to the business of winning this war.

I have seen three wars, but will have to admit that this is the most halfhearted attempt to win one I have ever seen.

Case for Trial

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I hope everyone read the article concerning the selling of oil to Red China by two of our large oil companies. These petroleum products were then resold to Red China.

Both of these companies should be tried for their business methods.

Threat of a Stampede

"We must not be swept away by a wave of hysteria," so said President Truman two weeks ago, in his message to Congress on the control of subversive activities. Despite his wise counsel of restraint, there is danger that the Senate will be stampeded into passing extremist legislation—and that Administration supporters themselves will join the stampede.

Backers of the Mundt-Ferguson bill forced the issue when they set out to attach that totalitarian measure to the economic controls bill. To head off this unscrupulous maneuver, Administration leaders agreed to vote on subversive activities legislation—possibly this week—and undertook to write a bill of their own.

The danger is that in the hysteria of the moment Administration leaders may make concessions that weaken the Bill of Rights.

Readers of the Post-Dispatch are familiar with the reasons for our opposition to the Mundt-Ferguson bill. We oppose it because it would limit the political activity and free speech of Americans under the guise of requiring Communists and members of Communist-front organizations to register. We oppose it because such restrictive measures, once taken against an unpopular minority, can be more easily taken against others. We oppose it because the bill fits perfectly Mr. Truman's description of legislation "so broad and vague in its terms as to endanger the freedoms of speech, press and assembly as protected by the First Amendment."

Communist espionage, sabotage and treason must, of course, be sternly dealt with. As Mr. Truman said in his message, many laws are on the books to deal with them. If these laws can be strengthened, well and good. The President's request for broader authority to prescribe security regulations for defense areas and for an extension of the statute of limitations on peacetime espionage seems reasonable and proper.

But legislation which undertakes to curb speech or political activity or the publication of unpopular opinions—even of Communists—is something else. Legislation which has these aims, no matter what the mechanism for attaining them, cannot be adopted without impairing the Bill of Rights.

If Mr. Truman believes what he said in his message of two weeks ago, he will insist that his supporters in the Senate refuse to compromise on basic principles of the subversive activities legislation. He will insist that the law penalize acts, not thoughts; deeds, not associations; the commission of crimes, not the theoretical ability to commit them. He will insist, to quote his own words:

That extreme and arbitrary security measures strike at the very heart of our free society, and that we must be eternally vigilant against those who would undermine freedom in the name of security.

Doing Something About Parking

San Francisco, the first major city to go underground for parking space, now plans to burrow into the backyard of its financial district. Before the war, the city completed a three-level garage for 1500 cars under Union Square. Now its Parking Authority, with $5,000,000 in hand, seeks bids for a new garage. Here is a record to challenge St. Louis.

Seven months have passed since our city government won legal authority from the Legislature to go into the parking business. The statute permits St. Louis to condemn property, and to buy, rent or lease lots for parking. The law also allows the city to operate parking areas or to lease them to private operators.

What has been done? The city has conducted a traffic survey which reveals its parking needs in startling figures. Normally, 80,000 passenger automobiles enter and leave the downtown district each day. Yet downtown St. Louis has only 29,000 parking spaces for these cars.

Maybe it is too soon to expect this city to be throwing up new concrete ramps for cars. But St. Louis got a late start toward solving its parking difficulties, and it might try to make up a little lost time. Yet almost day by day, the parking problem grows worse. Where do we go from here, Mayor Darst?

Appeal for Blood

St. Louisans have been asked to give 200 pints of blood each week for use in Korea. We are confident that the appeal will be met as readily as during World War II, when St. Louis became one of the principal blood collection centers of the country.

The quota of 200 pints a week represents an increase of 25 per cent beyond the requirements for civilian hospitals in this area, which will continue to be met.

Thus the Red Cross Blood Center at 3414 Lindell boulevard needs new donors and consistent donations to fill its share of the national quota. Donors may make appointments by telephoning Franklin 4980.

Britain Tries an Experiment

The final agreement on details of the soon-to-be-born European Payments Union marks what may be a historic shift in policy by Great Britain. For when the pool of the currencies of the Marshall plan nations goes into effect, it will be the first time that Britain tries to find out in actual practice whether its Commonwealth relations necessarily conflict with Western European Union.

Thus far, Britain has been hanging back on European union. The principal, and indeed the most substantial, argument made by Britons of all political faiths has been that it is a case of either Western Europe or the Commonwealth, and Britons would rather rely on the Commonwealth than on Western Europe.

Explaining this attitude in the July issue of Lloyd's Bank Review, Professor Lionel Robbins of the London School of Economics, points out that "the other self-governing members of the Commonwealth have shown the strongest disinclination to be linked to the United Kingdom itself by strong constitutional bonds. It is improbable that this disinclination would be relaxed for a purely European association."

In the recent world war, he continues, "our chief support came from extra-European sources. It was to Canada and the United States, to say nothing of other members of the Commonwealth, that we looked for immediate succor. It is with these powers that we built up the most intimate alliance the world has ever seen. In the struggle which may lie ahead, I do not think many of us would object to our forces and our fortunes being controlled by a joint staff headed by an American. But I think we should refuse absolutely to lose our identity and power of decision in a purely European combination."

But now the great experiment is to be tried, haltingly enough for the moment, and sterling, which is the currency of much of the world, is to be thrown into a common West European pot. This comes at a time when members of the Council of Europe meeting at Strasbourg are urging a strengthening of the organization's authority. To this, British hesitancy has been the principal block. If the experiment of sterling in the European Payments Union succeeds, perhaps Britons will be willing to take longer chances on closer association with Western Europe in other fields.

From the Peiping Loudspeaker

Since the Russian puppet-master has made the charge a standard item in his repertoire, it is not surprising to hear Communist China accusing the United States of "seriously violating peace in Asia and the world."

In his telegram to Trygve Lie, the Chinese Communist foreign minister, Chou En-lai, not only accuses this country of aggression against Korea, but also puts much stress on the Seventh Fleet's Formosan assignment.

That such tactics should bring the Chinese Reds an invitation to Lake Success is most unlikely, and Peiping knows it. So the message can only be regarded as a contribution to the propaganda with which the Kremlin is trying to discredit us in the eyes of Asiatics.

The Russians and their Chinese puppets cannot possibly believe their outrageous charge of aggression in Korea. They cannot possibly expect the members of the United Nations to believe it since we are acting under a U.N. directive to repel aggression. They can hope to impress only those people who get their news exclusively through Red channels.

But the Communists may be pinning more hope on their exploitation of the Formosa question. Here the United States is acting on its own, rather than on U.N. instructions. Some of our friends already have indicated their uneasiness about this. As we said on this page recently, there is an element of uncertainty about our Formosan policy which ought to be cleared up. But about one fact, certainly, there can be no doubt: This policy is not based on any aggressive attitude toward China.

In bringing Formosa into the Korean picture, President Truman's intent was to prevent the spread of hostilities. He not only charged the Seventh Fleet with the prevention of an invasion of the island. He also instructed the Nationalists on Formosa to stop attacks on the Chinese mainland. Mr. Truman acted to neutralize the area, and he added that he was leaving its eventual disposition for the future.

And so the Formosa issue should and will be settled, just as the question of Communist Chinese representation in the U.N. eventually will be settled. But neither will be resolved because of a campaign of pressure-by-falsification emanating from the Peiping loudspeaker.

N.A.M. Warning on Prices

When the National Association of Manufacturers warns against unwarranted price increases and hoarding of inventories by industry, it is not only news but an occasion for congratulations.

One may be skeptical of the effectiveness of such appeals, but we think it is a healthy sign that the N.A.M. will denounce "the chiseling opportunist who adds to his selling price a single penny which cannot be justified by an unavoidable increase in production costs."

There was a time when what the N.A.M. calls chiseling opportunism was regarded as a natural law of free enterprise. The notion that a profit system can respond to some other motives than profit used to be regarded as naive idealism. We are glad the N.A.M. now believes it can, and we hope its members by their action justify the belief.

Suspend Boondoggling—or Stop It?

Suspension of rivers, harbors and flood control construction jobs that do not aid the prosecution of the war in Korea is a sensible step by President Truman. These jobs compete for materials and manpower with production needed to win the fight in the Orient. That competition, if continued, would make the present price inflation worse. If the projects were carried on at these inflated prices, the country would be saddled with an exorbitant expense.

Furthermore, many millions of dollars can be cut out of the rivers, harbors and flood control projects without any real loss. For while many of the projects are worthwhile, others are mere boondoggling with only political advantages. Senator Douglas tried to cut out the boondoggling projects, but without success, when the rivers and harbors bill was up. The Army Engineers, who proposed to do the boondoggling, were able to offer selfish advantages which meant more to a majority of members of Congress than the unselfish ideal of the good of the nation, which Senator Douglas espoused.

The President's freeze of non-essential projects of the Army Engineers might, in fact, be a good occasion for everyone concerned to ask whether they shouldn't stay permanently frozen. The old Army game of boondoggling with rivers and harbors is—it is obvious now—frittering away the nation's strength. War and the threat of war have made it obvious. But isn't it a frittering away of strength at any time?

Is it sensible to waste our national substance in political boondoggles, whether at a time of national crisis, as now, or before such a time? Regardless of when the waste occurs, it is all strength that is missing at the hour of need. The country can ill afford that kind of politics-as-usual any longer.

Would a Kick Really Help?

You do not need a very profound insight into human nature to sympathize with the television fan who wants to kick Russia's Mr. Malik in the shins. This is a perfectly understandable reaction whenever this human gramophone plays his cut-in-the-Kremlin, warranted-to-look records. But would a good, swift boot do any good?

It is one of the facts of life that a kick in the shins is painful. But the Russians, quite obviously, are oblivious to the facts of life. So, if you kicked Mr. Malik, he wouldn't know you had. It is also well known that Russian diplomats see black as white, aggression as self-defense, war as peace. So, having been kicked, Mr. Malik probably would feel that he had been patted on the back.

Much better than kicking may be the Indonesian way of handling the gentleman from Moscow. The Indonesians invited him to a party and handed him a drink. Maybe if he is pined with enough liquor, he can be brought to sobriety.

It's an idea to explore with a really philosophical bartender.

IN FOR THE DURATION

New Assault on the Current River

Between Book Ends

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Army Engineers are making new effort to push through dam projects which would destroy beauty and recreational value of Ozark springs country, writer says; notes that Gen. Pick last year called off proposals; says this temporary retreat was familiar maneuver.

Leonard Hall, Director, Ozark Protective Association, in a Statement to the Army Engineers

Patriotic Americans have been shocked at the recent refusal of Congress, under pressure from the Army Engineers and their lobbyists, to cut one cent from the current and infamous "pork barrel" bills under which hundreds of millions of tax dollars are to be spent for alleged flood control, drainage and allied projects.

Such action at a time when under-supplied and under-manned troops of the United States are dying on the battlefields of Korea to defend the principles of democracy—and when every resource at home must be strained to the utmost to rebuild the defenses of our nation—indicates an almost unbelievable callousness on the part of legislators, Engineers, contractors, navigators and similar interests.

For the past 100 years our Federal Government has played a disastrous part in the exploitation of our national water resources for the profit of powerful private interests, instead of guarding these assets for the benefit and productive use of the people. At this moment, a national Water Resources Policy Commission, headed by Morris L. Cooke of Philadelphia, is gathering data toward the establishment of a national water resources policy.

Dominated by Engineers

A primary finding of this commission must be that nationwide water management on a sound basis is only possible when such management is integrated with proper management and use of other national resources. A primary failure of our present approach lies in the inability of the Army Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation to develop such integration.

With regard to the hearings recently organized by the Corps of Engineers for the so-called Arkansas-White-Red Basins Inter-Agency Committee, certain facts are pertinent. Under the Flood Control Act of 1930 as passed by the Senate, a three-year Study Committee was to have been set up to make water management recommendations for the area under consideration. Committee members were to be appointed by the President and the Governors of the states concerned. The committee was to have authority within the area.

Under pressure from the lobbyists for the Engineers, through representatives in Congress whom they control, this part of the act was nullified and changed so that the Inter-Agency Committee could be dominated and controlled by the Army Engineers.

Without Gobbledy-Gook

The act was altered to assure control by the Engineers through exempting from the act "Federal projects now constructed and in operation, under construction, authorized for construction, or projects in the planning stage." This was done in accordance with reports currently before Congress, or that may hereafter come before Congress, in accordance with the first section of an act entitled "an act authorizing the construction of certain public works on rivers and harbors for flood control and other purposes," approved Dec. 22, 1944.

Eliminating the gobbledy-gook and double talk common to documents of the Engineers, this means in plain language that the Inter-Agency Committee will not function at all in the instance of the White River basin, since plans for the despoliation of this watershed by the Army Engineers are of long standing and are either now or can be at any time placed before Congress. In other words, the Act of 1950 is entirely abrogated in this instance in favor of the Act of 1944, giving the Engineers full and complete control over the program.

Domination of the committee by the Engineers is further assured by the calling of a hurried series of public hearings on matters about which the other members of the committee cannot possibly be informed; and on which the Engineers have long since worked out complete plans to assure the maximum of high dam building, regardless of all other factors listed for consideration by the Act of 1950. Thus once again is assured the greatest possible effort to exploit White river basin for the profit of the afore-mentioned interests; specifically, the dam-building, navigation and navigation interests; and to enhance the bureaucratic power of the Corps of Engineers.

"Stooges and Lobbyists"

With special regard to the proposed Doniphan and Blair creek dams on Current river, the following facts are pertinent. Reported hearings have been called by the Engineers on these dams. Despite every effort by the Engineers to make it difficult for opponents of the dams to appear and be heard, sentiment at every hearing has been almost unanimously against the dams. Practically all pro-dam testimony has been presented by stooges of private interests which stand to profit from the dams. Among methods used to attempt to throttle opposition have been packed meetings, calling of meetings at remote points and filibustering by said stooges to occupy the entire time of the hearings.

Following the last hearing at Newport, Ark. (on matters concerning Missouri), which several hundred Missourians attended, efforts to ram these dams down the throat of this State were temporarily abandoned. This is a technique familiar to all who follow the tortuous maneuverings of the Engineers and their lobbyists in flogging off their program on the people.

In November 1949, Gen. Pick, Chief of Engineers, stated the Current river dams were not justified and would not be justified "in the foreseeable future." Gen. Pick's office reiterated this statement as late as Aug. 1, 1950. Yet we now learn that on July 28, prior to Gen. Pick's last statement, a representative of the Engineers at an Inter-Agency meeting stated the Current river dams had been replaced as part of their recommended program for the White river basin.

Missouri Will Speak Out

The case against the Current river dams has been made too often to need restatement. No possible benefit for flood control, power, navigation or recreation can justify the cost of these dams. They would destroy the most beautiful, scenic and picturesque asset of the entire Ozark country; and destroy the most magnificent series of big springs in America. They would destroy thousands of acres of wildlife habitat, good bottom farm and forest lands, leaving other thousands useless because there would be no bottom land to fit into a crop and pasture program.

The total cynicism of the Engineers toward public opinion is well illustrated in the last sentence of Section 4 of the announcement of the hearings, as follows: "Opposing interests, if any, are also urged to state the reasons for their position." The Corps of Engineers may rest assured that, as in the past, the people of Missouri will do just that.

The Magnificent Rebel

MARTI: APOSTLE OF FREEDOM, by Jorge Manach.

(Devine-Adair Co., 343 pgs., $4.50.)

At times, when the obstacles seem insurmountable and the road to be traveled ill-defined, there appear occasional individuals who, by dedication to a noble cause, not only point the way for a nation to go but also in so doing carve for themselves imperishable places in the history of that people. Jose Marti, father of Cuban independence, was such a person. Yet the magnificent Marti was something more than the customary soldier-politician.

At 18 Marti was in exile. Devotion to an ideal kept him out of Cuba almost all of the remaining days of his 43 years of life. Across a quarter of a century his was the unquenchable spirit, the fiery tongue, the facile pen—all dedicated to the cause of Cuban freedom. Physically Jose Marti was small but intellectually he towered as a giant among men. Physically Jose Marti was a weakling, thanks in no small part to treatment accorded him in prison, but spiritually he was god-like.

Marti, born in 1853, early learned to love Cuba more than self and freedom even more than Cuba. Given his oratorical brilliance and his training in law, a lesser person would have carved out a successful career under the colonial order in Cuba. Not young Jose Marti. When, at an early age, he came to dedicate himself to sacrifice himself if need be—to the cause of Cuban independence, his every subsequent action was in support of his high ideal. His legal education he dedicated to the cause, likewise his rhetorical gifts, and, too, his literary genius. His very life he dedicated to the cause.

Much of Marti's greatness lay in his demonstration that the pen is mightier than the sword. His literary societies, his poems, his essays, his newspaper writings, his publishing ventures—all bore the stamp of a literary genius that was hailed wherever the Spanish language was known and all served the cause of independence.

It was Marti's energy that integrated widely separated groups of exiles in the common cause. It was love for Cuba that led him up and down the United States, to Mexico, Guatemala, Panama, Venezuela, Jamaica, the Dominican Republic, and Haiti. Poignant are the lonely wanderings of the exile. Out of his own experiences came the melancholy in his writings. It was Marti who gave to the cause of Cuban independence the democratic-civilian spirit which pervaded the movement. It was Marti who collected the funds to further the military phases of the movement.

Yet this civilian organizer of victory was not satisfied to let others do the fighting in the field. Early in 1895, as the hostilities began which ultimately were to merge into the Spanish-American War and produce final release from Spanish domination, Marti made his way to Cuba in order to enter the fray. On May 19, 1895, Jose Marti, having given his utmost as a civilian, gave his all as a soldier.

Challenged by the majesty of his subject the author of this biography, Jorge Manach, has written an almost rhapsodic portrayal of Marti. Let any American who would know more of Cuba read Manach's interpretation of Marti, the man who in his day so capably interpreted the United States to Cuba.

Washington Sidelights

Advisory or Supervisory

By Raymond P. Brandt

Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON.

WHILE the Senate debates the 1950 Defense Production Act for partial economic mobilization, an undercover debate is going on among the executive agencies as to whom President Truman will delegate the authority granted him by Congress.

It is a conflict over old-line jurisdictions, always a fighting issue in government, and of personalities. The outcome is important because whatever is done during the next few months will go a long way in setting the pattern for full mobilization — if that becomes necessary.

THE PRINCIPAL AGENCIES involved are the National Security Resources Board, headed by W. Stuart Symington of St. Louis; the Commerce Department under Secretary Charles Sawyer; Interior under Secretary Oscar L. Chapman; Agriculture, under Secretary Charles F. Brannan; Labor, under Secretary Maurice J. Tobin, and the Federal Power Commission, under Chairman Mon C. Wallgren.

The NSRB became "advisory" to the President and not an "operating" body in 1947 when Arthur M. Hill resigned from the chairmanship because the White House rudely rejected his program to set up skeleton operating units within the organization.

Under Acting Chairman John R. Steelman, the Assistant to the President, NSRB became purely a planning outfit, with projects parceled out to the existing agencies. Nevertheless, the NSRB staff worked out detailed plans for total mobilization that seemed to call for an over-all outside group like the War Production Board or the Office of War Relocation to have the final say on what should and should not be done.

SYMMINGTON SUCCEEDED STEELMAN last spring and like all other Government officials concentrated on the possibility of a big war with Soviet Russia. He, like others, did not foresee the possible little wars by the Kremlin satellites. The result was that the Korean "police action" required the hasty revision of mobilization plans.

Under the pending legislation, most of the mobilization powers are granted directly to the President, who must, of course, delegate authority and, if possible, much of the responsibility. The big question is whether this authority will be delegated to the NSRB, as a supervisory body, or whether Truman will single out separate agencies for specific jobs.

If he names the NSRB as the supervisory body, he will be reversing himself on the role of this board; if he delegates specific authority, there will have to be a referee to iron out differences and decide jurisdictions.

MEMBERS OF THE GROUP around Truman boast, rather rep-

etitionally, that they are "team players." Little definite information is obtainable about the debate going on behind closed doors. In general, however, it looks as though Sawyer and Steelman are plunking for separate delegations, which would give Commerce jurisdiction over materials; Labor over manpower; Agriculture over foods and food production; Interior over coal, gas, oil and electricity, with perhaps an assist from the FPC.

Symington and Chapman appear in general agreement that there must be some supervision of the whole works by somebody other than the President, who does not have the time to settle disputes over jurisdictions. It is probable that such disputes will not be serious at first because the diversion of a relatively small percentage of civilian production to the military will not greatly jar the economy. But if wage and price controls and rationing become necessary, in addition to priorities and allocations, there are bound to be wide differences of opinion as to who shall do what.

Thus, Commerce, having jurisdiction over steel might find itself in disagreement with Agriculture over the amount and price of steel for farm equipment. Or if Interior wanted steel for oil and gas pipelines, would that have priority over needed railroad facilities?

IT IS EASY TO SAY that these disputes should be worked out amicably by the agencies concerned. The experience through out World War II demonstrated that the disputes never end, the best that can be hoped for is "agreement by friction."

If no supervisor or referee is appointed, who can speak for the President, Truman himself will have to make the decision. Then, if he follows the Roosevelt precedent, the man who has the ear of the President will be the one most likely to get what he wants.

Symington, by temperament and training, is an "operator." Perhaps he can train himself to be an "adviser," but his Air Force experience made him look to a chain of command and the acceptance of responsibility. Steelman, who sees the President more often than any other official, is a more flexible type. By his Air Force training he is a "conciliator," and believes he can bring disputants into agreement.

The final word will come when the White House make public the Executive Order spelling out the distribution of the powers outlined in the Defense Production Act. The order has been revised many times already and Congress may make more changes necessary. The writing job has been difficult and if agreement is not achieved when Congress gives its approval to legislation, there will be more disputes looming in the executive agencies.

Municipal Opera is closing its thirty-second season with a flourish. Its final production, "Carousel," which opened last night in weather more fitting for football than outdoor theater, was one to be proud of. To the 10,400 persons of the audience who shivered through it, it offered all the folkay charm, tenderness, poignancy and warm appeal of the original Theater Guild production, seen here in 1947 at the American. Its cast, chosen personally by the composer and author of the hit, Rodgers and Hammerstein II, was a splendid one, equipped with good voices where needed and capable of good characterization—as a matter of fact, better in several leading roles than the one seen at the American. Its staging was top notch, including the original Agnes de Mille dances. This was its first production at the Forest Park theater. More than that, it was the first time it was produced outside the Theater Guild, and the Guild's selection of Muncy Opera as the sole outdoor theater to have a chance at it this year was fully justified.

In "Carousel," Rodgers and Hammerstein reached a new peak in integration of book, songs and dance. Here, much more than in their previous "Oklahoma!" the lyrics of the songs propelled the action. Most of the music is better appreciated heard as part of the play than through a juke box or over the radio, so its songs did not achieve quite the fame of those of "Oklahoma!" But the score is nevertheless a triumph. There are some lovely tunes, such as "If I Loved You" and "You'll Never Walk Alone," some quaintly charming ones like "You're a Lady," "When I Marry Mr. Snow," and "When the Children Are Asleep," and some gay and spirited ones as "That Was a Real Nice Clam Bake" and "June Is Bustin' Out All Over." Hammerstein's expressive, allusive lyrics are his best.

This "Lilliom," transferred from Budapest to the New England of 1873, calls for more sensitive acting than usually found in musical comedy and operetta, and it gets it here. As Billie Bigelow, the swaggering, carnival bully who mistreats his blindly adoring wife, commits suicide when caught in a holdup and is permitted by a heavenly gate-keeper to return to earth for one good deed to redeem his soul, Jack Killy was extremely satisfactory. His baritone, while not big, is rich and pliable. Virginia Haskins, former St. Louisian now a member of the New York City Opera Company, was an appealing Julie Jordan, and her soprano was warm, easily produced and graceful. Dorothy

20 Pints of Blood Donated Here For War in First Day of Drive

MRS. RICHARD E. ALLEN giving the first pint of blood here for military use in Korea.

Boy, 12, Who Immigrated From Costa Rica Volunteers, Offers to Paste Labels When Told He Is Too Young.

Twenty pints of blood were given at the St. Louis Blood Center, 3414 Lindell boulevard, yesterday, the first day of a Red Cross appeal for blood from Americans at home for use at the fighting front in Korea. The first of the donors was Mrs. Richard E. Allen, 6672 Washington avenue, University City, assistant to the director of first aid at the St. Louis Red Cross chapter. Blood also was offered by 12-year-old Walter Arrieta, son of Mrs. Joseph F. Miller, 426 De Baliviere. The boy, a naturalized citizen who immigrated from Costa Rica, said he gave blood last year in a revolution in Central America. When attendants told him donors must be at least 21 years old, he volunteered to help paste labels on bottles.

MacFarland, an excellent comedienne, was Carrie Pipperidge. Winifred Heidt, as Nettie Fowler, sang with two of the show's best songs to sing, although with little acting, seemed at times to suffer from a tight voice production, probably because of the cold—you actually could see the actors' breath—but it was still pleasant to hear her contralto again. Mario de Laval, seen at the American in the same role, again made an expert Jigger, sardonic, caustic and stylized.

The dances—the famous beach ballet, the hornpipe and a folk dance—were a joy to behold. They were staged by Kenneth MacKenzie to the original De Mille choreography, and performed with élan and effervescence by MacKenzie, Duane Worrall, Diane Keith and the chorus's own Gretchen Wlencke. The show will run two weeks.

Surviving are two cousins, Elmer and William Glorius, both of Seattle, Wash.

CANTERBURY REBUKES RUSSIANS ON A-BOMB

Anglican Church Head Rejects Stockholm Petition as False Peace Move.

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury has told leaders of the Russian Orthodox Church their recent ban-the-A-bomb appeal falls far short of a formula for world peace.

The head of the Church of England—Dr. Geoffrey Fisher—declared: "This suggestion relating to the atomic weapon isolates one aspect of the problem only, one weapon only out of all the possible weapons of mass destruction, some of which are as frightful as the atomic bomb."

"All such weapons should be abolished in civilized states. But so should war itself."

The Archbishop addressed his letter to the Patriarch of Moscow, head of the Orthodox Church in the Soviet Union. The Patriarch and heads of the church in Armenia and the Soviet province of Georgia issued the peace appeal recently to "Christians everywhere."

Dr. Fisher remarked: "I do not think it is right or reasonable at this stage to suggest to governments that the atomic bomb be banned outright and unconditionally. Nor must those who support such a suggestion think that they alone are fighters for peace."

"There must first be such effective international control as to prevent the use of the bomb. Before a ban can be effected, there must be confidence and agreement as to international control is necessary as evidence of that confidence."

Russia so far has blocked in the United Nations proposals by western powers for an inspection system to enforce a ban on the bomb.

"The peace movement before the last world war," Dr. Fisher said, "was much encouraged by Hitlerite Germany, in the hope that it would encourage an attitude of appeasement in this country and thus leave Hitler and his accomplices a free hand to do as they liked in Europe."

"There is some evidence that the present Stockholm manifesto, too, may be used by some persons for political purposes, and I have therefore felt bound to advise my clergy not to associate themselves with it."

KENNETH BURTON, RADIO AND STAGE PRODUCER, DIES AT 51

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 22 (AP)—Kenneth Burton, radio and stage director-producer, died early yesterday of a heart attack after attending a cast party of his Hollywood Bowl production of "The Vagabond King." He was 51 years old. Burton produced the radio shows "The Railroad Hour" and "Father Knows Best." He had appeared in musical comedies. He also was a composer. During the war he served as a chief quartermaster in the South Pacific and Aleutians.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Mr. Stassen's Rashness Rebuked

MR. STASSEN made a speech last week in which he offered his answer to the question posed with such terrible sharpness in Korea. How can this country carry out the promise, laid down in the Truman Doctrine, to resist aggression everywhere in the world, and yet not let "our armed strength . . . be dissipated and spread out in jungles and mountains and valleys in distant parts of the world?"

It is obvious, as Mr. Stassen realizes, that to fight two or three wars in the Korean style in various parts of the world, as we might be obliged to do under the Truman doctrine, would be to exhaust our power without achieving our aims. To win a military decision in the Korean war alone may well require a larger army than we had in all parts of the world on June 25, 1950.

So, says Mr. Stassen, let us ask Congress to pass a resolution declaring that we shall go to war with Russia "if further aggressions occur at any point in the world by these Communist imperialist forces," and then let us ask the General Assembly of the United Nations to approve our resolution.

Mr. Stassen's proposal is, I imagine, in substance the one which occurs first of all to anyone who begins to study the problem. It is so natural and so easy, on first thought, to say that instead of fighting the satellite aggressors, let us threaten to fight the Russians if they support and even if they do not restrain the smaller aggressors.

Thoughts Before Words.

But on second thought, the trouble with this proposal is, first, that though it is an ultimatum to say by going to war, no body could draft the ultimatum and make its meaning clear; and second, the military power to enforce with any reasonable prospect of success any ultimatum against Russia does not now exist. There can be no greater mistake in foreign affairs than to threaten loudly but unclearly to go to war, and not to be nearly strong enough to win the war if the chip is knocked off your shoulder.

Mr. Stassen can satisfy himself at the first point by sitting down to write the resolution he can draft the resolution he wants Congress and the United Nations to pass. As a matter of fact I think he should have done that before he made the speech. In so grave a matter it was his duty to say precisely, not excitedly and rhetorically, just what he thinks the terms of the ultimatum should be.

Let me cite an example from his speech to illustrate the imprecision, indeed the wooliness, of the proposal. "Should we not make it clear," he asked in the main statement of his proposal, "that nations which are undefended now are in a position to issue an ultimatum to the strongest military power on earth seems to me a good deal less than statesmanlike. Mr. Stassen said in the same speech that the policy he recommended would require "a total of 35 billion dollars or more per year for a number of years." It seems to me amazing that he thinks he can deliver it on a military budget of 35 billion dollars a year or anything like it.

What Mr. Stassen needs is to study thoroughly and to grasp the fundamental facts of the military situation in the world today. It is plain that he does not understand the situation now. Someone who knows what Mr. Churchill called the other day "the terrible facts" should do for the United States in its relation to the whole world what Mr. Churchill did in Parliament and then again at Strasbourg for Britain and Western Europe.

Tom-Toms for Tommy—Glaviano, the Pepper Martin Jr. of Cardinals

Hits Pair of Home Runs As Redbirds Gain Fourth Straight and Third Place

By Bob Broeg

If this current winning streak of the Cardinals turns out to be wasted on the Indian summer air, the Redbirds will not have failed because of any shortcomings of the short guy who has played a tall third base—Tommy Glaviano.

Little flatnosed Tommy, the Mad Monk, has his failings like most major leaguers, ribbon clerks and sports writers. He's a bit erratic at field, though he'll make stops of hot drives to which many a third baseman would give a polite tip of the hat and a how-do-you-do. And since an old shoulder injury was aggravated late last season, his throwing at times has been scattered.

But as a thick-chested junior Pepper Martin, sharp-eyed lead-off man and possessor of more power than most players on a club that lacks enough long-ball hitting, Glaviano has turned in a highly respectable job. And the best tribute Manager Eddie Dyer or anyone else could pay his efforts is that the Cardinals missed him the 22 games he was sidelined, first with a strained ankle and then twice with a painful bone bruise at the base of his right thumb.

At spring training, they say, Tommy gave 'em the horrors, and the shuddering was quickened when it became apparent that a broken ankle suffered by Eddie Kask in mid-season last year had since to regret the switch to the cigar-chewing whiskey salesman from Sacramento.

After all, covering more ground than any Redbird third baseman in years, Glaviano has batted .308, 31 points higher than in his freshman major league season and 10 better than in any year since he won a triple promotion from Class C to Double-A in the fall of 1948.

The 26-year-old peppercorn has hit 28 doubles, a total exceeded only by Stan Musial and Red Schoendienst among the Cardinals, and while wheeling 65 walks—one every sixth time at bat—he has belted seven home runs.

Not Many Homers, But—In an era of a jack-rabbit ball and general swinging from the heels, seven is a modest figure for a home run, but it happens to be the highest among the Redbirds. Only Musial, the mighty, and Capt. Enos Slaughter, now in his worst slump in 10 years with only two hits in 46 times at bat, have cleared more fences than Tommy.

Little Glav broke a string of four games in which no member of the Cardinals had homered when he tied off the first inning last night at Sportsman's Park, and in the best tradition of a good leadoff man, he really started something.

From the time Glaviano tagged Johnny Sain in the first inning, the Redbirds behaved at bat in a manner most strange, hitting for distance, making the most of their opportunities and, above all, scoring in clusters for a happy change.

With three homers and two doubles among eight hits, the Cards and Harry Breechen, winning his first game in 32 days, coasted to a 5-2 victory over Boston, wrestling third place from the Braves with a fourth straight triumph that was most unusual.

Unusual? No, make it unique. For instance, the nine runs were one more than the Redbirds had scored in their previous three games of this winning streak. The game was the first in the last six in which they scored more than three times. The parade across home plate was the club's best in 23 contests, an dthe three homers within the first six innings were as many as they had totaled in their 12 most recent starts.

Glaviano started things and, with an able assist from batterymate Del Rice, who hammered a two-run homer, Breechen finished them. A seven-hit pitcher while gaining his seventh victory and first in five tries since July 20.

The Cat walked the first two batters he faced and passed no more.

Boston used the walks in the first inning for a run, picked up an unearned tally in the second and then didn't pass first base breaking out all over with the scoring meases, the Cardinals got a run in the first on Glaviano's drive into the right-center field pavilion, added three in the second as Rocky Nelson doubled in one tally and D. Rice sent the other two across with his sixth circuit smash, picked up four more on only one hit in the fifth and finished with little Glav's drive into the bleachers in the sixth off Mickey Haefner, former American League lefthander recently obtained by the Braves from the White Sox.

Fumble Helps Cardinals. Haefner, the old knuckleball specialist who had worked five previous scoreless innings in the National League, forced across a run with a walk in the fifth, a frame in which sure-fingered Buddy Kerr gave away two runs with a fumble at shortstop, and then the veteran southpaw threw that fat one to Glaviano, who hadn't hit two homers in a game since he left the American Association.

But the brunt of the run-scoring business again was borne by Sain, the big righthanded ace who has become a favorite couple to the Cardinals. A certain 20-game winner for the fourth time in five years with 16 to his credit already this season, Tobacco John managed to beat the Redbirds and Breechen three weeks ago at Boston, 4 to 3. But he has given them 28 hits and 28 runs in 13 innings.

Sain, it seems, is one pitcher who can make timid Redbird bats rattle as aggressively as Mad Monk Slaughter, the tobacco-chewing throwback to the Gas house Gang, plays third base.

Redbird Notes. Cloyd (5-4) Boyer, who pitched one-run ball at Boston to beat the Braves on Aug. 1, will be on the mound for the Cardinals tonight in the second game of the series at Sportsman's Park. Bickford, the no-hit righthander who has won three of four starts from the Redbirds, probably will work for the visitors.

The Cardinals' easiest victory in a 1-0-2 time game Dyer gave a chance to excuse the limping Musial after five innings.

Breechen, leading off with his first of two singles, got the only hit in the four-run fifth. A walk to Glaviano, a sacrifice and an intentional pass to Musial filled the bases. One run scored on Slaughter's force-out at second and when Sain walked Hal Rice, again leading the bases, Billy Southworth called on Haefner, who forced across another tally with a pass to Marty Marion before Kerr kicked Nelson's double-play grounder for two more.

Matt Surkont, bulky righthander who was with the Cards briefly in 1946, reported to the Braves from Sacramento, where he won 18 games and lost 13.

Most Valuable? How About Looking To Right for Del Ennis and Wertz

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (UP)—It is time to be thinking about those most valuable player awards, and a good place to look is to the right—right field, that is—where Del Ennis of the Phillies and Vic Wertz of the Tigers are super special candidates.

These slugging stars of the respective National and American League pace-setters, consistently have been the men to deliver the key hits in key games. Wertz, for example, blasted a three-run homer in the very first inning yesterday as Detroit downed the Browns 7 to 1, and left home for Yankee Stadium a comfortable three and one-half games ahead of second place New York.

That gave the congenial Wertz a total of 109 runs batted in for the year, putting him second only to Walt Dropo of the Red Sox. It was his twenty-fifth home run of the year, making him fourth in that department.

Ennis made three hits to pace the Phillies as Lefty Curt Simmons gave up only four hits, all singles, for a 4-to-0 victory over the Giants, his sixteenth against seven defeats.

Dapper Del didn't bat in any runs, but he still leads the National League in that department with an even 100 for the season, whereas he is second only to Ralph Kiner in home runs with 26.

There are remarkable similarities in the two sluggers. Both are built like village blacksmiths, with muscles they probably have never flexed yet. Neither was a polished fielder until their managers decided to switch them from left to the right gardens. Wertz became a solid man in right field last season, while Ennis, who was just so-so in left, became an excellent right fielder when Eddie Sawyer stuck him out there this year. In yesterday's victory, for example, he made a brilliant play on Eddie Stanky's first-inning hit, holding him to a single on what looked like a sure triple.

The victory for the rifle-armed Simmons, who soon will be armed with a rifle and on his way to Korea, was made secure when Willie Jones hit a fourth-inning homer, his twenty-fifth. Andy Seminick, another muscle man, hit a homer in the seventh when Richie Ashburn drove in the other two runs with a single.

Dodgers Trip Pirates. The Dodgers remained five and one-half games behind the Phillies by winning a 5-to-2 decision at Pittsburgh when Jim Russell came home with the deciding run on the business end of a double steal with Duke Snider. Russell had walked and Snider singled him to third with two men out in the fifth when they cashed in on the old Dodger trade mark of recent years—speed and daring. Don Newcombe pitched the victory, scattering 10 hits as he won his thirteenth game. It also was his fifth when they cashed in 16 games with the Pirates this year.

Trucks, Gray, Tiger Pitchers, See Dr. Hyland

Virgil Trucks and Ted Gray, Detroit Tigers' ailing pitchers, reported to Dr. Robert F. Hyland today for examination and treatment. The St. Louis surgeon said Trucks was suffering from inflammation of a tendon of the biceps muscles and would remain here for treatment, rejoining the Tigers later in Detroit.

Gray's condition, not as serious, was diagnosed as bursitis of the left shoulder. If he responds to treatment he may join the Tigers for their Eastern trip.

Trucks, who won 19 and lost 11 last year, has not pitched since May 19. Gray, with a 13-6 record this season, has not pitched since Aug. 8.

Stole Seat Cushion Here in 1934, Cards Tell Him to Sit Tight

UNKAS was the man in Kansas who sat upon a Sportsman's Park seat cushion he removed from the park here 16 years ago. His conscience bothered him. So he wrote the Cardinals a letter, offering restitution. His letter said in part:

"I attended a World Series game at Sportsman's Park in 1934 between the Cardinals and Detroit Tigers and I took away with me a seat cushion. I want you to tell me the cost of the cushion and whatever other charge is due."

"Please accept the cushion as a souvenir, and just relax," was the answer of Fred Saigh, Cardinals owner.

Zack to Open Red Sox Set With Johnson

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 22—Zack Taylor sat down with Earle Brucker, his bullpen coach, today and mapped out the Browns' pitching program for the next five games.

"We'll start Don Johnson against the Red Sox tonight," Taylor said. "Then, we'll have Dick Starr for Wednesday and Ned Garver for Thursday."

After the three games with Boston, first stop of their last Eastern tour, the Browns move into New York to meet the Yankees twice.

"We figure on Cliff Fannin to work the first game against the Yanks," Taylor said. "Stubby Overmire will go in the second game."

The Browns arrived here this morning from Detroit where they were beaten Monday by the Tigers' home run power. Though the game was played on what was originally an open date in the schedule, it drew a paid attendance of 13,190.

Wertz Settles It in First.

Since the final score was 7 to 1, the Tigers made more runs than they needed in the first inning. After Don Kolloway and George Kell singled in succession with one down, Vic Wertz smashed his twenty-fifth home run of the year. Al Widmar was the victim.

Wertz's drive into the lower rightfield pavilion gave him the distinction of having hit more home runs in a season than any other left-handed batter in the 56-year history of the Tigers. Goose Goslin's total of 24 had stood since 1935.

Still far removed from Wertz is the record (58) that makes Hank Greenberg, now general manager of the Cleveland Indians, the Tigers' all-time home run leader.

Eleventh Victory for Trout. Wertz's blast off Widmar supported four-hit pitching by Paul (Dizzy) Trout. The veteran righthander posted his eleventh victory and his seventh in succession.

St. Louis' trouble Trout seriously only in the seventh inning. Singles by Ray Coleman and Roy Sievers and a pass to Owen Friend filled the bases with none out. At that time the Browns were trailing only 4 to 1.

After Tommy Upton forced Coleman off the plate, Taylor sent Dick Kokos to bat for Widmar. On his grounder to Jerry Priddy, Sievers scored the only St. Louis run.

With Widmar removed from action, Fannin was called to the bullpen. After pitching a scoreless seventh, he yielded three runs in the eighth. With Kolloway and Wertz on the bases as a result of singles, Hoot Evers drove the ball into the upper deck of the left-field stand. It was the nineteenth home run for the blond outfielder from Collinsville, Ill.

Yesterday's Stars.

BATTING: VIC WERTZ, Tigers, smashed his twenty-fifth home run with two on, singled and scored another run to lead the Tigers to a 7-1 triumph over the St. Louis Browns.

PITCHING: CURT KIMMONS, Phillies, pitched only two innings, but allowed the Tigers to a 4-0 shutout victory over the New York Giants.

WRAYS COLUMN

This Night Life May

Be Baseball's Undoing.

It isn't the jack-rabbit baseball... It's not the "quail" pitching, as Connie Mack calls it... Nor yet the "we want a home" cry of the grandstand wolf... It's the day-night life the ball player leads.

This idea is not wholly ours, although occasionally we have flitted with gossamer merely trying to think how it would feel if we had to eat like a ball player... We have heard baseball men themselves discuss it... And several writers have considered the day-night problem and decided that you can't do that to nature.

Some objectors even maintain that the lights have caused the many injuries noted in these times... Others contend that expectation of major league life is shortened considerably by day-night baseball dietary hazards.

We have to admit that if you're looking for injuries you can take a peek at our sunlight-floodlight Cardinals and find plenty.

They may be said, in fact, to have all but wrecked a championship career, if you consider that day-night work hours have put out of commission the team's No. 1 relief man, Wilks, its No. 1 catcher and a promising first baseman for most of the year, not to mention mis-haps to Musil, Marion, Diering and the fadeout of several pitching staff sponges.

When Do We Eat? Has

An Important Bearing.

If you had to catch up with your meals on a modern ball player's schedule you'd be down with ulcers, too.

How can anybody be expected to harmonize his vitals when he plays a two-night double-bill one day for example, and a day game the next afternoon?

The situation compels mid-night dinners, late breakfasts, sandwich grabbing in the afternoon, then another two-night double bill.

Or, maybe it's a night game followed by a train take-off to another town for an afternoon game there.

You get three-four night games a week and two-three day games.

It seems probable that you'll come up with indigestion and a curialed career.

Your eyes have to readapt themselves from sunlight to floodlight shifts, sometimes within four hours... With the ulcers working on your insides and the day-night schedule working on your vision, if you are beamed at the plate, hit on the head by a batted ball or misjudge everything from a misjudged foul to the other fellow's spikes, it won't wonder the hospitals are crowded?

Anyway, that's what you hear or read, and maybe it really is part of what's contributing to our allegedly deteriorating quality of baseball.

We personally lean to a belief that you can't kick old Dame Nature around like that and have her bob up 100 per cent smiling.

Rugged players have been known to pooh pooh this... "The generation is just soft," they jeer... They still doubt if night baseball affects playing enough to cause damage.

"While the modern players may have to play ball at night, it isn't half as bad as playing hell at night which was a favorite pastime of yore old days ball player especially if his room happened to be on the fire escape."

The Phils and Siler.

MEMBERS of the Missouri Athletic Club of more than 40 years ago who attended the funeral services of Dr. Otto Schwarz, one of the country's distinguished authorities on clinical obstetrics and gynecology, and a full professor in this field at Washington University, probably recalled when young Otto, at 17 years of age, was one of the country's most promising speed swimmers.

He and his brother Marquard, who later became a member of the United States Olympic swimming team of 1906, represented the club in many of its swimming meets.

After entering the medical field Otto was forced to abandon aquatic competition, but later he developed into one of the city's most astute followers of baseball—a real student of the game.

He has foretold many baseball developments and last April he beat the experts to the punch... In a conversation with this writer he declared:

"All the figures and facts available indicate that the Phils will win the pennant this year... The club is very well-balanced and its young men are going to show their full power this season... And here's another thing to expect: Dick Siler's batting will become an important factor in the Phils' success."

As of today, the analysis appears 100 per cent perfect.

Centralia Star Gains

20th Win of Season

CENTRALIA, Ill., Aug. 22 (AP)—Gene Pisarski, 21, Centralia pitcher, has become the only 20-game winner in the Mississippi-Ohio Valley D League.

The Chicagoan was shelled heavily in an 8-4 victory over Paris last night. Last year Joe Drucha, then with Centralia, won the most games with 19 for the entire season.

Pisarski, who pitched a no-hit game earlier this season, has lost two.

Runnerup West Frankfort kept pace with leading Centralia by beating Springfield 15-12 in 13 innings. Mattoon slipped back in third with a 6-4 loss to Paducah. It was the chiefs' seventh straight victory.

Jim Jackson, St. Louis, Eliminated in U. S. Amateur Golf

Titleholder Coe Defeats Al Clasen

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 22 (AP)—James G. Jackson of St. Louis was defeated by Robert Hill, Rochester, N. Y., 7 and 5, today in the United States Amateur Golf Tournament here.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 22 (AP)—Charles Coe, putting "like a kid in the third grade," pulled his game together enough today to defeat Al Clasen of St. Paul and move into the third round of the fifth annual National Amateur golf tournament. Coe won, 3 and 1.

The defending champion started poorly, sending his drive into the trees off the first tee but got a half when Clasen, a municipal links player, also ran into difficulty. They shared with 1-over par. Coe lost the second to Clasen, 3 and 1.

It wasn't until the sixth that Coe, from Oklahoma City, got even but took two in succession from there and made the turn 2 up.

A strong east wind swirled over the 6555-yard layout of the Minneapolis Golf Club. Players on the first tee had to drive into it. The wind toughened the list of par of 35-36-71.

Mae Hunter Defeated. Mal Galletta of Douglass, N. Y., defeated Mae Hunter of Pacific Palisades, Calif., in the match which was halted last night with Hunter 1 up and one hole to go. The Coast youngster had been 2 up on the sixteenth but picked up his ball in protest against playing in the darkness and the United States Golf Association ordered the hole forfeited to the New Yorker. They halted play.

Galletta birdied the eighteenth this morning and won the first extra hole when Hunter was unable to negotiate a partial styrmie.

Tom Veesh of Milwaukee, the 280-pound former Notre Dame golfer, moved into the third round with a 3-and-2 conquest of David Marshall of St. Paul. David Logan, 1950 University of Illinois captain, mastered Jack Munger of Dallas, 3 and 2.

Four St. Louisans Remain. Four golfers who qualified from the St. Louis district entered the second round of match play. Jimmy Jackson, Raymond E. Watson Jr. of Kansas City, Mo., and Harry A. Paller tackled James M. Lee Jr. of Tallahassee, Fla.

In yesterday's competition, Switzer eliminated Gus Moreland of Peoria, Ill., 2 up, while Paller won from Stanley Bielst, Yorker, N. Y., National Public Links champions, 4 and 2. Moller had to go 22 holes to defeat James H. Johnston of Minneapolis, 1 up.

Two other St. Louisans were eliminated. Jack Purdom lost to Jim Frisina, Springfield (Ill.) veteran, 5 and 4, and Richard F. Kohlmann was eliminated by Dr. Carmichael Jr. of Columbus, O., 1 up.

Poholsky Registers Another Victory for League Leading Wings

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (UPI)—The Springfield Cubs were moving in on the Jersey City Giants in their struggle for fourth place in the Eastern League playoffs today.

Bob Spicer, 165-pound right-hander, hurled the Cubs to a 7 to 2 victory over the second-place Baltimore Orioles last night and cut Jersey City's margin to one and a half games. The Giants split a double-header with the Syracuse Chiefs, winning the opener, 1 to 0 and losing the nightcap, 7 to 6.

Meanwhile, the Rochester Red Wings opened a 7½-game lead over the Orioles by blasting the Toronto Maple Leafs, 9 to 2, behind Tom Poholsky's seven hit pitching. Don Richmond and Don Bollweg hit homers for the Royals.

The Buffalo Bisons defeated the Montreal Royals, 3 to 2, in the other game.

St. Louis Team Leads. The St. Louis cricket team took over undisputed first place in the Forest Park Cricket League by defeating the Willow Cricket Club, 89 to 37.

For the winning team, D. Masterson was the top batsman with 42 runs while E. Ebsworth lead the bowling with six wickets for 15 runs. V. V. Masterson Jr. was high for the losers with 11 runs and his teammate R. Cummins was top bowler, taking four wickets for 32 runs.

Woman Outshoots Men to Win Champion of Champions Title

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 22 (UP)—Joan Pfeuger of Miami, Fla., yesterday won the Champion of Champions title, the first time a woman has taken it in the history of the Grand American.

Miss Pfeuger, a shy 20-year-old blonde, defeated a field of 38 of the best shots in the nation to take the title on the opening day of the fifty-first grand program. She won a dramatic shoot-off against five men to nail down the title.

In the shoot-off she bested Dean Blank of Terrytown, La., a wheat farmer from the Panhandle, after a 50-bird test. Each shooter dropped one target in the first 25. Blank missed his second bird in the last 25 while Miss Pfeuger blasted all.

Previously eliminated were Mercer Tennille of Shreveport, La., Ned Lilly of Stanton, Mich., and H. H. Crossen of Cardiner, Mont.

All five had 100 straight in the regular event.

In the 200-target introductory competition, three shooters broke 200 straight. They were Charles Kaitchnee of Exeter, Ill., Ralph Marthey of Orville, O., and D. A. Fiewell, a professional from Harvey, Ill. The best score for women in the regular event was the 197

Winners here will be likely selections on the United States team to compete in the Pan-American games in Buenos Aires in February.

Dorfman Wins Title. LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP)—Irv Dorfman of New York City yesterday defeated Fred Kovaleski of Detroit to win the Yugoslav tennis championship at Opatowitz. The scores were 1-6, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4. The result was announced here by Tanjug, the official Yugoslav news agency.

FREEPORT, Tex., Aug. 22 (AP)—Olympics Champion Alice Coachman heads the entry in the women's national A.A.U. track and field meet scheduled here Saturday night.

Miss Coachman, of Tuskegee, Ala., was 1948 Olympics high jump queen and has won the national title for nine years.

Another entry is Stella Walsh, the veteran of more than 20 years of track campaigning, whose "retirement" lasted just a year. Last year at Odessa, Tex., she announced she was retiring from competition with that meet. But she's back for another try.

Miss Walsh will compete in the 200-meter run which she won seven times, the 100-meter run in which she was victorious four times and the broad jump, which she captured eight times. She did not win a first place last year, being second in the 200-meter, fifth in the 100-meter and third in the broad jump.

Amelia Bert of Providence, R.I., shotput champion; Juanita Watson of Tuskegee, 50-meter dash champion; Nell Jackson of Tuskegee, 200-meter dash finalist; and Dorothy Dodson Kenny of Chicago, javelin champion, are others in the star-spangled field.

The meet opens Friday night with a junior division for those competitors who have not won a national title. Winners Friday night will be eligible to compete in the senior division Saturday night.

Referee of the meet will be Mrs. Evelyn Hall of Glendale, Calif., a former national record holder in the 50-meter hurdles. She is chairman of the A.A.U. national women's track and field committee and chairman of the Pan-take what Sandy threw his way. There are some odd twists in Saddy's record. Phil Terranova beat him in a savage fight in Detroit. Humberto Sierra outpointed him and Sierra was knocked out by Pep in 12 rounds. Sierra made a sorry showing in a bout here being knocked out by Riley in three rounds. Riley brushed Sierra aside as though he were a fly.

Another to outpoint Saddy was Chico Rosa, a boxer in Hawaii, whom Riley defeated in 10 rounds last year.

When Saddy knocked out Pep in four rounds the first time, Pep and his handlers always attributed the setback to overconfidence. That occurred, showing against Sierra, considered by Pep as little more than a sparring partner.

Also Saddy was knocked out by Jock Leslie in Hartford, Conn., Pep's home town, and that probably added to Pep's overconfidence. That occurred, though, at the start of Saddy's career.

Against these reverses, Sandy has an impressive array of knockouts and decision triumphs. In 99 victories, up to this year, he scored 67 kayoes.

Saddy has a reputation of being a fighter who doesn't worry too much about the niceties of the occasion. Paraphrasing Leo Durocher's "nice guys finish last," Sandy probably thinks "nice guys get licked."

Terranova always said that the meanest fight he was ever in was his bout with Saddy in Detroit and Pep said the same thing about his two meetings with Sandy.

Saddy is about 6 feet tall and this, alone, in a featherweight, makes him a difficult man to fight as most of the featherweights are not of that height. He is only 5 feet, 5½ inches in height.

Sandy has long arms, also, and his opponents have claimed that he strikes with his elbows where they'll do the most good. That, too, may be just because of the length of his arms.

In any event, it is likely that Pep and Saddy will employ all the tricks they know and 'tis said they know about all of them. They'll let the blows fall where they may and let the referee act as a traffic cop.

Pep Ranks With Greats. B U T Pep ranks among the truly greats of the division and in his second meeting with Saddy he showed expert ring generalship and ability to

Moeller Has 76, Reynolds 80 in Caddie Tourney

By Robert Morrison

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 22—Earl Moeller, 16-year-old St. Louis champion, fired a 76, four over par, for the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying test for the national caddie championship over the Ohio State course here this morning.

Bob Reynolds of Glen Echo, the second St. Louis entrant, came in later with an 80.

(The St. Louis boys' trip is sponsored by the Post-Dispatch.) The 16-year-old Moeller trailed the early leader, Frank Card, 17-year-old Columbus High School player and home course caddie, by five strokes after the first 18. Card had 38-33-71, one under par. Card was two over par for the first nine, but came home in three under.

Moeller had trouble with his putter in the first round, missing short putts on Nos. 2, 4, 5, 8, 10 and 12. On No. 6, he sank a 10-foot putt for a birdie 4, while on No. 15, he had another birdie.

His card with par:

Out—4 4 4 5 3 4 3 4—39
Par 4 4 5 3 5 4 3 4—39
Moeller 5 5 5 3 5 4 3 4—39
In—4 4 5 3 5 4 3 4—39
Moeller 5 5 5 3 5 4 3 4—39

Tied for eleventh after all but about a dozen of the morning field of 76 had reported, Norwood's Moeller, with 41 for the out nine in the afternoon, seemed sure to be among the 64 qualifiers for the championship play.

It appeared Reynolds also would qualify, as he was tied for twenty-fifth on his morning score. His score of 80 was fattened when he put his ball in the water on No. 12 and took a seven.

Reynolds' card:

Out—4 4 5 3 5 4 3 4—39
In—4 4 5 3 5 4 3 4—39
Reynolds 5 5 5 3 5 4 3 4—39
Moeller 5 5 5 3 5 4 3 4—39

The 16-year-old Norwood caddie, top player in the two-man St. Louis combination here, had the benefit of special treatment from none other than the "golf doctor," Cary Middlecoff.

Middlecoff and Lloyd Mangrum were in town yesterday to conduct a clinic in connection with the caddie tournament. Bob Gibson of the P.G.A. magazine selected Moeller as an instruction subject for Middlecoff.

So Moeller received a timely

17-DIVISION ARMY CALLED FOR UNDER BIG DEFENSE BILL

of the Army is to modernize its equipment. Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson told the committee that emphasis would be put on tank production.

Navy Expansion Plan.

Navy officials said the expansion program for the fleet and its aviation was like this: Combatant ships will be increased from 243 under the present budget to 282; amphibious-type and auxiliary craft will be increased from 386 to 629, bringing the total number of operating ships to 911.

In the air, there will be three more attack carrier groups, three anti-submarine carrier groups, seven more patrol squadrons. The new total of planes operated by the Navy and Marines will rise from 6233 to 7335.

The carrier program as proposed under the supplemental request would make the operating force consist of: Nine large carriers; 10 small carriers, plus one for training and three transport carriers (apparently for ferrying planes as has been done in emergency shipments to Korea.)

Marine Corps officials said that to meet the expansion requirements and the Korean war needs, 2997 officers and 60,571 men would be required and that the new figure for the current fiscal year then would be 10,314 officers and 127,699 men.

Most of them will come from the reserves, said Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Marine commandant. Cates told the committee that 30 per cent of the increased strength would go into combat units.

Secretary Johnson estimated that the Korean fighting may end about February if the U.N. police action is stopped at the thirty-eighth parallel, the prewar border of North Korea.

High command planning—at least up until late in July—was based on an assumption that the war would not be carried north of the thirty-eighth parallel, he disclosed.

Johnson was asked by Chairman Mahon (Dem., Texas, of the subcommittee how much of the supplemental money would be needed to fight the Korean war, how much for general expansion of the armed forces and rearmament.

"There is more money than we need in Korea if these troops from North Korea should now or at an early date withdraw to the thirty-eighth parallel. If there should be perchance misadventure and if the campaign should not move according to the best estimates of Gen. MacArthur and the joint chiefs of staff, we might need more money," he said.

Chicago, Aug. 23 (INS)—President Al Jordan told the forty-sixth annual convention of the Beauty and Barber Supply Institute in Chicago yesterday that hoarding has created a shortage of hairpins.

Television in Review

Many Nice Words For Ransom Sherman

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. IN APPEARANCE, Ransom Sherman is a cross between a male Helen Hokinson character and the late, lamented Robert Benchley. His humor, also reminiscent of Benchley, is warm, appealing, fresh, original and well, if I can think of any other adjectives, I'll throw them in as I go along.

Sherman's half hour show, the summer replacement for "Kukla, Fran and Ollie" KSD-TV at 6 p.m. is a five-times-a-week operation, Mondays through Fridays, and how he manages to be so funny so often is one of the wonders of the modern world.

One reason, of course, is that he is borrowing liberally from his old radio show. That's all right with me, too. It would have been a shame to have wasted those wonderfully crazy stunts on a non-visual medium.

Oh, yes, charming. Belongs up in the first paragraph after "original."

JOHN CROSBY

WHERE WERE WE? Sherman has to be seen to be fully appreciated. You have, for example, to watch him explain the business cycle with graphs and charts, easily one of the great masterpieces of confusion of our time, or to demonstrate how to build a double-decker bunk or to lecture about "Our Little Feathered Friend, the Squirrel." The Squirrel is our friend. And at times, he is not our friend. We have here the potted red squirrel. You have to see his expression of mild dismay as his pretty assistant, who has been sent to the library to do research on squirrels, blithely explains that the squirrel "has tusks seven feet long, goes to a secret hiding place to die and ever since has been known in Schenectady."

Sherman's countenance is a little jewel of understatement. He approaches each new task—how to make a hanging garden out of an old tire, let's say—with a beaming self-confidence which turns gradually to concern as the tire resists all efforts at domestication, and finally to muted despair as the whole thing comes apart on him. "Well, you can see how it's done," he'll say, washing his hands of the whole operation. "Anyone can do it."

Anyone except Sherman. He's a menace with a hammer. Let him tackle a double-decker bunk—"anyone can do it"—and the whole studio is a shambles in a matter of minutes. He handles a hammer and nail with a grim-jawed determination wildly out of proportion to their importance. In his eyes, though, you will detect a wary, watchful look, as if the hammer and nail were his mortal enemies which, as a matter of fact, they are.

DURING THE SUMMER, Sherman has lectured on such divergent subjects as fashion, cooking, social improvement, great moments in history, and, of course, workshop hints—bunching each of them excellently. I don't know which one he bungled best, but I'm rather fond of his fashion talks. In one of them, he showed how a single garment, which looked like a potato sack, could be converted into a street dress, house dress, evening dress and cocktail dress—demonstrating each of these terrible things on a monstrously indignant model.

He has occasional small triumphs, like translating "Mon Ideal" into English, a great feat of linguistics which he tossed off with a self-deprecatory air, as if anyone can do it. He also has a magnificent command of the French word "alors" which in his hands is a sort of all-purpose word meaning anything you care to read into it. His pronunciation of alors, allowing a little for his Midwestern accent, is barely short of perfect.

SHERMAN IS NOT entirely alone on his show, though you don't have to bother much with his assistants. Spelling him on his occasional rest periods are two singers, Johnny Bradford and Nancy Wright, and the Art Van Damme Instrumental Quintet, who not only sing and play, but also help out with Sherman's monkeyshines. Once in a while, there are guests, but not anything like the guests you encounter on other TV shows. Sherman is likely to introduce you to the cop on duty outside the studio, or the janitor of his apartment building. Sherman's idea of a really famous man is the first person ever to save a seven-foot ball of sealing wax. I almost forgot the stuffed moose, which is another regular on his show. It blows smoke rings through its nostrils.

SHERMAN, IN SHORT, is much too valuable to be simply a summer replacement. I devoutly hope he'll still be around to help us through what begins to look like a very grim winter.

One final word. Whimsical. Scamper up to the first paragraph and insert yourself between "warm" and "appealing." Get along with you now.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

BEHIND the necktie counter of a swank Manhattan haberdashery, presides a young man who studied originally to be a mortician, but found the work too lugubrious. "Customers sometimes balk at paying 10 to 15 bucks apiece for a fancy tie," he commented. "I usually calm them by proving statistically that no matter how high prices go, it's still infinitely cheaper to live than to die. Take shaving. Suppose it costs you a half dollar or 75 cents. Know what a family pays to have a dear departed shaved? Five bucks! Sometimes even 10!"

"A woolen overcoat sells for a hundred dollars tops. A wooden over coat sells for 300 bottoms—and you know what you can do with those silver handles. A taxi ride to the cemetery rarely exceeds two-fifty. The same trip in a hearse costs 10 times as much. The clincher is: your wife or mother-in-law will tell you all about yourself for nothing, but look what they have to pay a minister to talk about you at some dismal funeral parlor. See what I mean? How about a couple of fouldars for spring?"

Social Problems

By Emily Post

AN upset mother asks, "Now what? My daughter was married by the Justice of the Peace a year ago but we were the only ones knowing about it. The groom thought his parents would be too upset if he married before he finished college. We had intended to have a second church ceremony just as soon as his graduation was over. But now a baby is expected and his arrival rather complicates our original plans. We don't know how to proceed under these circumstances."

The only thing to do now is for them to tell his parents just what you have told me and to publicly announce the marriage as having taken place where and when it did.

DEAR MRS. POST: We expected to have a small wedding reception here at home but the lists have grown to such a size that we're having it at church. Punch and wedding cake is all the refreshment possible at the church. We have a large punch bowl but the number of cups is inadequate. I'd rather not borrow from friends because of possible breakage. But may I use paper cups and also paper plates for the cake?

Answer: Paper cups and plates would be entirely permissible under the circumstances.

Marx Brothers' Big Hits on Broadway

'Cocoanuts' Sagged in Philadelphia, but Went Over Big in New York

By Kyle Crichton

This is the fifteenth of a series of stories in the condensation by Kyle Crichton of his book, "The Marx Brothers."

SAM HARRIS was preparing a new show for the Marx Brothers and Irving Berlin would do the music. What they needed now was a writer. The boys had their minds set on George Kaufman but bided their time and said nothing to Harris. They had found from experience that show business is so constituted that any suggestion is immediately met with a dozen reasons why it is impossible.

Harris sent Richard Atteridge around to see "Will Say She Is," and confer with the boys. He was doubtful when he arrived, and the reception they gave him, hardly quieted his fears.

"Atteridge!" they cried, leaping up and beginning to push him around affectionately.

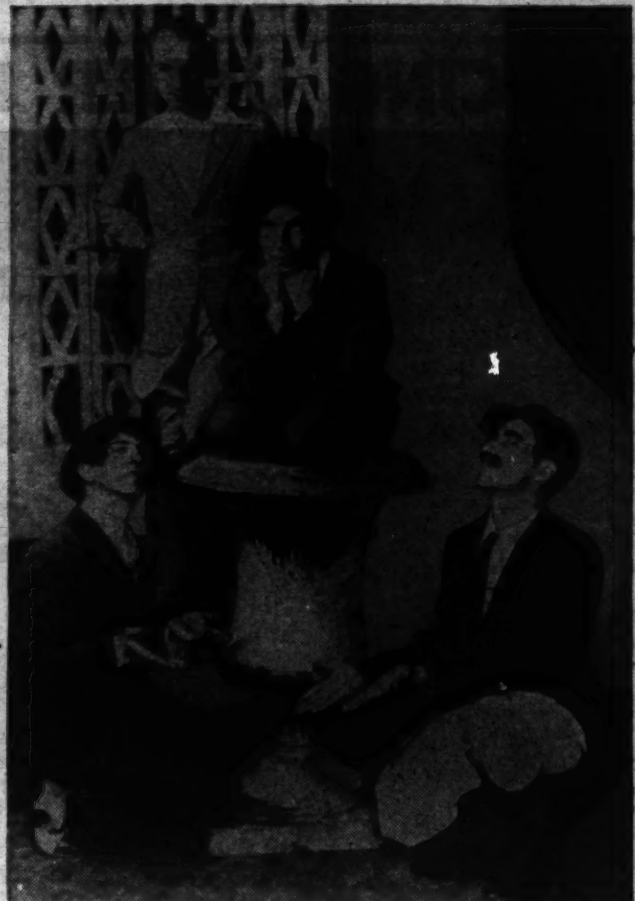

"You're the playwright," they charged accusingly. "You're Mister Atteridge. You're going to write our show."

They wrung his hand, gave him the accolade on both cheeks, slapped his back till his teeth rang, and bumped him with the hip from brother to brother. Zeppo addressed him eagerly.

"What d'you say, Atteridge?" he cried sportingly. "Two shows or none. I'll wrestle you for it." Atteridge uttered a shriek and fled.

KAUFMAN started writing a book show to be known as "Cocoanuts," and soon regretted it. Who could write for a family in which the straight man was the chief comic and the next important figure was an idiot boy who couldn't talk?

If rehearsals were terrible, the Philadelphia opening was catastrophic. The show ran until almost one o'clock and there wasn't a laugh. Lines that had read hilariously in script lay where they dropped and expired. The music was good but not inspired; the dancing was fine; and nothing

Conversation With Tallulah

By Tex McCrary and Jinx Falkenburg

EVEN ON THE TELEPHONE, YOU CAN FEEL THE IMPACT OF TALLULAH BANKHEAD'S UNINHIBITED FISSION OF THE HUMAN ATOM—EVEN IN REPOSE, SHE TICKS LIKE A TIGRESS STUFFED WITH TIME-BOMBS. EVEN FOR AN INTERVIEW, WITH AN AUDIENCE LIMITED TO TWO REPORTERS AND ONE PHOTOGRAPHER, THERE IS PERFORMANCE TO-THE-HILT. FIRST WORD ALWAYS IS: "DAH-LING."

WHEN THE target is Tallulah, reporters get this friendly and admiring admonition from Broadway's most famous press agent: "Asking Tallulah a question is like pulling your finger out of that hole in the dike—WHOOSH!"

Tallulah Bankhead is one surviving star who needs neither press agents nor playwrights to give her good lines for more than small-talk or shop-talk—with her, conversation is a convention, complete with an ad libbed room. Cautiously, we plotted the attack—perhaps if we only mentioned names of people, obscure names, who have figured in her career. . . a name like Gen. Coleman DuPont, for instance. Ring a bell, Miss Bankhead?

"Oh yes, that sweet old sadist—he was a darling, really, but isn't that going into the whole story of my life? You see, I, too, am writing that story—yes, a book. My book! My story. Of course I've serious! I have already started. Haven't gone too far yet. . . don't know if I should write it out in longhand—or dictate it to some frightened, despectacled male secretary—or just talk it into one of those imperious machines that stare at you like plastic cobra. . . I started out on the road with a box of big sharpened pencils and a tremendous ledger like Father Time uses. When the tour was half over, somebody peeked into the massive, empty book and grinned evilly and exclaimed: 'My, aren't you off to a flying start.'"

"You see, just to make sure that I could read my own writing, I had scrawled in bold, firm strokes across the flyleaf, 'TALLULAH BANKHEAD'—and that's as far as I had gone in six months of work. But I have the first three volumes quite clear in my mind now. . ."

No play ever written can match that story, if she ever writes it—but Miss Bankhead, that name we mentioned. . . Gen. DuPont. . .

"Oh yes, he owned the Waldorf-Astoria. . . only man I ever borrowed money from. . . $1000. . . paid it back, too. Met him at a party where I did some clever imitations of other actresses of the day—only way I could get the floor in those days. And the general staked me to my trip to England, where du Maurier had a part in a play for me."

After I had told everybody at the Algonquin about my trip to be, a cable came telling me not to come to England—which was absurd, so of course I ignored the cable! I went to England, I walked in to du Maurier, and I said: 'Here I am—only in those days, it seemed more like, 'Way-ah, hear Ah-yen!'"

He muttered something about else was worth a thing.

"We'll have to cut it, of course," said Sam Harris trying not to show his concern.

"You won't make the cut that'll do any good," said Kaufman sourly. "The Marx Brothers."

BUT NEW YORK was duck soup for the Marxes. Lines that were stale and unprofitable in Philadelphia suddenly became swift, scintillating, and remorselessly humorous on Broadway. They scarcely opened their mouths on opening night in "Cocoanuts" when the house was in an uproar.

"Cocoanuts" is based on the Florida land boom, and what with running a hotel and inveigling the guests into buying "lets Groucho is a busy man. When the hotel help strikes for better wages, Groucho frees them from wage slavery by cutting off their wages. He refers to his non-paying guests as "idle rumors."

"Let's go out there and give 'em a real show tonight!" he yelled.

"We'd better," said Groucho grimly.

The Marxes were broke but employed; few victims or the holocaust would soon be able to say the same.

Care of Softwood Floors.

WE ran into a softwood floor the other day which has been in daily use for something over one hundred years which more or less raises the question why they called 'em "softwood" in the first place. Actually, a good softwood floor should last indefinitely if you take good care of it. Here is the way to do it.

If the floor has a shellac finish or a wax polish just sweep it clean with a soft cotton floor mop, dampened with a mixture of two parts of kerosene and one part paraffin oil. When the mop finally gets dirty, wash it out with hot water and soap. Stains that won't respond to sweeping will usually respond to fine steel wool moistened with turpentine.

For floors finished with a wood seal, use sandpaper to remove stains and then apply additional sealer which you rub down with a pad of fine steel wool.

Softwood floors in ordinary use should be waxed twice a year. Liquid waxes are okay but don't use water-emulsion waxes on floors with a shellac finish. When a particular area of waxed floor begins to show signs of wear, don't wait for the rest of the floor to catch up—apply a fresh coat of wax.

Groucho: We have a quota. Do you know what a quota is?

Chico: Sure, I got a quota. (He takes the coin out of his pocket.)

The boys were soon making a shambles of "Cocoanuts." They were romping and improvising; little was left of the show Broadway had seen on opening night.

Haywood Brown was annoyed backstage one night when he found George Kaufman was ignoring his conversation.

"What's the matter with you?" he asked testily.

Kaufman held up an apologetic hand.

"I may be wrong," he said. "But I thought I just heard one of the original lines."

SAM HARRIS was so worried that he came back to remonstrate with the boys. They greeted him warmly, threw him promptly on the floor and took off his pants.

After "Cocoanuts" ran two years, they had another resounding hit in "Animal Crackers." In one scene Harpo appeared as a Latin American diplomat, complete with top hat, flowing cape, and an elaborate sash around his waist. As he comes down a long flight of stairs, his exuberance gets the better of him and he draws forth a revolver and starts shooting. A waiter grapples with him, inadvertently yanks the sash, and Harpo suddenly left standing in his shorts. On one occasion there was the yank, and Harpo was left standing, but with a difference.

He had forgotten to put on the shoes.

Life was wonderful and there wasn't a cloud in the sky. Groucho totted up his assets and breathed freely for the first time in his life. He had assets of $240,000 and nothing but death could keep him from a million.

And then came Oct. 18, 1929.

Groucho was dragged out of bed at 9:30 that morning by a call from his broker.

Groucho pulled on his clothes, stumbled out the door to the garage, and spent the rest of the morning among the mourners in the broker's office. At intervals he wrote a new check and passed it over. At noon he wrote no more. His $240,000 was gone.

They held a brief post-mortem in their dressing room before the show that night, which was broken up by a cry from Chico.

"Let's go out there and give 'em a real show tonight!" he yelled.

"We'd better," said Groucho grimly.

The Marxes were broke but employed; few victims or the holocaust would soon be able to say the same.

Playing Canasta to Win

By Albert H. Morehead

SOME players seem to feel that the penalty prescribed for an insufficient meld doesn't sufficiently penalize the offender—although actually his crime is not such a heinous one and it's hardly likely to be committed in an effort to obtain an advantage. Nevertheless, many players seem to feel that the offender should lose more rights than the law takes away from him.

Here's a hand a New York player asks about:

His opponents were wrong, of course. He could use his cards (both exposed and in his hand) in any way he wished in order to make a valid minimum meld.

Question: Is it possible to use 9-9-9-2-2-2 to make initial meld of 120?

Answer: Yes, provided you meld it in two separate melds of 9-9-2-2 and then these melds may not later be combined to make a canasta because they include more than three wild cards.

Vary a canned soup by adding half a bunch of watercress just before serving. Cut the watercress stems in one-eighth-inch lengths and chop the leaves medium fine before adding.

Needling 120, the player who held this hand melded a 10-10-10 and 7-7-7-2-2-2—which upon re-addition proved to total only 110.

Now the player who put this meld down was rather foolish, for with good luck he might have hoped to go out concealed by drawing one other player, but apparently he was getting a little desperate.

His next mistake, it seems to me, was to elect to discard the sevens one by one instead of starting with the tens. However, after

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

AM a girl age 14. In the fall I will be a sophomore in high school. I have two girl friends almost 15. I like to go out at night and my parents approve of the things I want to do. They know where I am and it is all right with them if I am home by 11 p.m. on week-days and 11:30 on Friday nights. My parents aren't my problem but my girl friends are. They have to be home by 10 p.m., or 10:30 at the most. There is a dummy little show in our neighborhood that has cowboy shows for the benefit of little children on Friday nights. I have to go there with them every Friday night, rain or shine, because it's cheap and those girls must be home so early. Whenever I suggest we go to a basketball game or do something different where we can meet boys, or that we go to a better show somewhere, they say they can't, they'd get home too late. They act like babies, and we always end up at the same show. I have tried to get them to go to our parish youth center, but with them that is out, too, even though the priest is always there and the center is across the street from the home of one of them. There aren't any more nice girls around here and I have to go with these two. We don't know any boys and the way things are going we won't ever know any. How can I join a crowd when there isn't any to join? Mother says I am too young to be worrying about boys. Am I?

UNHAPPY MISS,

Far be it from me to criticize your parents, but it seems to me they are very lenient indeed, unusually so, to set an hour as late as 11 to 11:30 p.m. for a 14-year-old girl to be home. The parents of your friends are more conservative. If you can't find a teen-age crowd in your neighborhood, surely at school or church, or at the nearby youth center you mention, you will find plenty of other young people your age and should have no trouble getting in with the crowd. If your mother approves of this youth center it might help her to talk to the mothers of the other two girls about it, and see if they won't be allowed to go there with you a night or two each week. Yes, you are too young to be "worrying about boys," as your mother terms it, but not too young to be wanting their company. Most girls get into a mixed crowd when they first enter high school, and it is better for a girl to have friends among boys as well as girls as she is growing up. Talk to your mother about these matters again. As to the cowboy pictures, they are a good deal better for you than a lot of others I can think of, and your parents doubtless agree.

IN ANSWER TO "Tipsey" This is the kind of thing that can be done if you make up your mind to it. It seems to be necessary so it is up to you to resolve to do it with the best grace possible. The other thing you mention would doubtless come along in due time if you can just be patient. No, I have no leaflets on the subject you mention but the Public Library has some books that will be helpful to you along that line, I am sure.

IN ANSWER TO "Jack" My Picnic Games leaflet has all kinds of good suggestions for games to play when you go on that wicker rooster. Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll mail it to you.

Have you a problem? Martha Carr will be glad to help you work it out. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you would like to have a personal reply. Address your letter to Martha Carr, St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It will receive prompt attention.

College Morals

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

WILL her son's morals be safe at the university? Mrs. K. wants to know.

"My son Warren graduated from high school this spring," she explains, "and this summer he is helping at a boys' camp, but I have to make plans quickly for his future, and the great question is whether he ought to go on to the university. Financially it would be a strain, but I think we could manage that. He could earn part of his own way. What holds me back, Dr. Popenoe, is the fear that he would get into an unwholesome atmosphere."

"We hear so much about immorality in the colleges, and young people losing the standards and ideals by which they were brought up. I'd prefer not to send my son to college rather than have him debauched. He's a fine young man, if I do say so. I've given some of the best years of my life to him. What do you think about the morality of the universities?"

I THINK HE'S SAFER in a college or university than anywhere else, Mrs. K. It's unfortunate that scare articles and sensational stories are run from time to time in the magazines. You mention several of them in your letter to me. I have been reading similar articles, and hearing similar stories, for years. It is always easy to stir up a little excitement by writing such articles and there are always incidents in college and out, which can be used to illustrate them. I have been running down these stories for a quarter of a century or more. The same yarns reappear over and over again.

Of course, unpleasant and unfortunate incidents do occur among young people in college. The same things occur more frequently among young people who are not in college. That is the real test!

KINSEY'S SURVEY LED HIM to three conclusions which are very important to you and me and other parents, Mrs. K. These are:

1. There is less sexual promiscuity and immorality in colleges and universities than there is outside. From this point of view, as I said at the beginning, your son Warren will be safer at the university than he will be if he stays at home!

2. The most immorality and promiscuity is found among people with the least education.

3. On the whole, the future of young people, in this respect is determined in their early years in their own homes. Kinsey felt that he could predict, with some confidence, how young people would behave in later years, if he knew the backgrounds from which they came.

I MIGHT REMARK, Mrs. K., that there are many other things to be considered in making a decision about sending Warren to the university! Have you talked it over with his high school principal? Maybe the university is what he needs. Maybe not. But in either case, you don't have to decide on the basis of trying to protect his morals. You have already settled the question by the kind of education you have given him so far.

Maid's-Eye View on Social Security

Provision That She Must Work Two Days a Week for One Employer the One Which Draws Her Ire

By Joseph Hanlon

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.

BRITANNIA may no longer rule the waves but Britannia Bailey, for three days a week, rules the household of this writer, does just about what she pleases and does it very well except that she will insist on putting too much starch in my shirts and in scuffing off the buttons when she frons them.

This may seem unimportant, but Britannia Bailey, or "Tanna," as she is more familiarly known, is not unimportant. She is one of about 1,000,000 "employees in domestic service" who, beginning the first of next year, will come under the Social Security law, with its taxes and benefits.

So it seemed pertinent for me to interview "Tanna" about her views on the subject. Before getting into that, it might be well to summarize, for the benefit of other Tannas and others who employ domestic servants, just what the law will be on the subject. The bill as adopted by a House-Senate conference committee, now awaiting President Truman's signature, excludes from its coverage about half of the estimated number of all domestic workers through a provision that to become eligible, they must work at least two days a week for a single employer and earn from that employer at least $50.

This rules out the domestic servant who works perhaps once a week at one place, even the domestic who works five or six days a week, but each day for a different employer.

For those who are under the terms of the bill a tax of one and a half per cent of the employer's earnings is to be withheld, theoretically at least, by the employer, and the employer is to add to this another one and a half per cent.

THE bill does not prescribe the method of collection of the tax. That is left for administrative determination by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. It could be some form of stamp plan, the method favored by the Federal Security Administration, under which special stamps would be sold at all post offices, to be pasted on a card or book at evidence of the collection of the tax. It is more likely to be the method favored by the Internal Revenue Bureau—each employer of a "covered" domestic worker will be required, every three months, to file with the bureau a simplified return showing wages paid, tax withheld, tax added by the employer and, along with the return, a check covering the tax as computed.

GETTING THE LOWDOWN ON SOCIAL SECURITY FOR MAIDS IN AN INTERVIEW OVER THE IRONING BOARD.

Authority for these conclusions is F. F. Fauri, senior specialist on social security for the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress. Both the House and Senate committees borrowed Fauri to draft their Social Security bills.

So I asked Fauri just how the plan would work out administratively. Tanna gets $5 a day and carfare, a total at our house of $16.70 for three days work.

Is carfare wages? Fauri thought it probably would be so construed, again by administrative determination yet to be made. It was a matter of what constituted the "labor contract," he said. Tanna considers her carfare as part of her wages, and she is a party to the "labor contract."

Well, then, if carfare is wages, might not those in domestic service succeed in persuading their employers to pay the whole three per cent tax, rather than withhold half of it and collect the other half from the employee? In the case of Tanna, the whole three per cent social security tax on $16.70 she earns in her only present "covered employment"—at our house—is 50 cents a week plus an infinitesimal fraction.

"They could," said Fauri, with a shrug of his shoulders, "but the market for domestic employees has loosened up, and if an employer didn't want to pay the employee's share of the tax, she could probably find an employer who would pay it."

Tanna had a little different approach to this point. "I think most employers would pay the whole thing," she said, scraping another button off the shirt she was ironing. "But I think most maids would pay their share, if they had to. We maids have been talking about this on the bus, but nobody seems to know just how it would work."

Leaving the subject of taxes, we turn to benefits promised. The bill provides for domestic servants retiring at the age of 65 and eligible for pensions under the conditions described earlier, a minimum pension of $20 a month. Domestic servants receive benefits just like industrial workers according to an involved formula set up by the new law. This formula figures benefits on 50 per cent of the first $100 of average monthly earnings plus 15 per cent of the next $200.

TANNA, who is approaching 40, although she won't say from which direction, nearly dropped the iron at that mention of a pension beginning at 65. "I'll be so dead then, I won't know whether I'm coming or going," she said. She felt better about it when I told her she could accumulate her 10 years of coverage while she was "approaching 50," but still wouldn't be able to draw the pension until she reached 65.

One thing she got mad about was when I told her she would accumulate old-age benefits only if she worked regularly for one employer at least two days a week. Besides the three days she spends at our house, she spends another three days at three separate houses, and on those three days she is not in "covered employment."

She's already made up her mind how to get in at least two days more of "covered employment," through one of her other three employers, who does a bit of entertaining and calls on her occasionally to prepare the meals and wash the dishes.

"I'm going to tell that woman next Wednesday," she said, pursing her lips grimly, "that if she wants to keep me, she is going to take me two days a week, regularly."

"But that won't be necessary," I assured her. "You've got to the first of the year to work it out with her."

"I know that," Tanna replied acidly. "But it's going to take that woman from now to the first of the year to make up her mind."

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"Backgammon"

ONE of our readers asks for the origin "and some information about" backgammon, which she refers to as "the English game now being revived in this country."

Backgammon is one of the most ancient games involving the use of dice and it has for so long been played in various countries in Europe that experts can relate the differences in the three old "schools"—Russian, Turkish and English. In England it was known as "tables" until some time in the Seventeenth century.

As to a specific origin for the name, "backgammon," there have been differences of opinion, in which certain elements of the game are recalled. Backgammon is played with a board in two parts, which might be described as two trays hinged together. In this connection the suggestion has been offered that the first syllable of "backgammon" may derive from the Danish "bakke," tray.

The more popular attribution points to "backgammon" as deriving from the Welsh tongue, in which it is interpreted as meaning "little battle." However, the crux of the game's play is in the movement of "men" on the board, and so Englishmen have defined "backgammon" as "back game," in allusion to the fact that the men are often set back. As a matter of fact, the play involves bringing the men back from the antagonist's table.

My Day Afternoon in Front of Fireplace

CAMPBELL ISLAND, N.B.

I AM trying hard to be philosophical and hope that the weather is bringing the Maine farmer much joy, but, when you come to a place for a week and there is a dense fog for the first two days, and the third day it deluges with rain, so that you are not even tempted to go out, it is hard to feel kindly toward the weatherman.

Elliott and the little boys left in a downpour Sunday morning and expected to be in Hyde Park by noon today provided the roads are not too bad. Miss Thompson and I stay until Thursday morning, and are still hoping for some nice weather, especially for the drive back, as we plan taking the route through the center part of Maine which I have not done in many a year. A stiver down through New Hampshire and Vermont should be beautiful too. I noticed on the way that some of the maples have already begun to turn a brilliant red.

I HAVE HEARD fabulous stories about the number of Sunday tourists that now come to this island, but few cars came Sunday, so evidently I was not the only person who decided that such rain was better looked at from within. I lit a fire, pulled up a comfortable chair and settled down to read.

There are many old books in this house, and Miss Thompson took to running through some old novels by George Eliot, chuckling with amusement at the changed points of view. I found old volumes of poetry, and was reminded how the small boys looked at the state of Longfellow in Portland, Me.

IT IS A PITY we do not read these old American poets more often to our children. They miss a great deal, I think. In one old book I found a sheet of paper on which was written the following verse. I cannot remember who wrote it though it is quite familiar to me and probably will be to some of my older readers: "One man in a thousand Solomon says, will stick more close than a brother, and it's worth while seeking him half your days of you find him before the other."

Nine hundred and ninety-nine depend on what the world sees in you, but the thousandth man will stand your friend with the whole round world again you."

That was the kind of sentimental verse people wrote in what they called "memory books" a hundred years ago, but it is the kind of a friend rarely found in today's busy world and, if found, he or she, should be as dearly cherished as they ever were.

I LISTENED to the radio and heard only sketchy news about Korea, but it seems a little better again. It was reported that Senator Brewster, when asked if he thought the atom bomb should be used in Korea, answered that the decision should be left to Gen. MacArthur. I hope and pray the bomb will not be used. But under the present circumstances, isn't the decision up to the United Nations and not up to any commanding general? I have always hoped that no one nation would ever use the bomb, for it seems to me that it would start such a chain of fear and hate throughout the world that it might well end our civilization.

Secrets of Charm How to Avoid Aching Feet

By John Robert Powers

THE face of a woman whose feet hurt may inspire sympathy or pity; but never admiration. There's no greater beauty thief than aching feet. They steal your poise, ruin your posture and take the grace out of your walk.

Many a lass, squeezing her toes into high-heeled pumps after a vacation spent in flimsy flats finds that she is in for days of agonizing awareness that her shoes are too full of feet. Why do women put up with this end-of-summer torture, when no matter what kind of shoes you wear, you can so easily avoid foot aches? The right foot care will keep your feet from spreading, your arches from weakening and callouses from forming.

Callouses can be prevented or eliminated with a weekly foot soaking in warm, soapy water. After ten minutes or so of this comforting dip, and while your feet are still wet, use an abrasive such as pumice stone on the calloused spots. Pay special attention to the backs of the heels.

Dry your feet thoroughly on a rough towel, slather them with rubbing alcohol and massage them upward from toes to ankles on top and underides until the alcohol completely evaporates. Next, rub a little tube lanolin into spots where callouses develop. Use firm, rotary strokes until the residue is absorbed. Dust off with talc or baby powder and you'll find one of your foot problems solved.

For the sake of your comfort and strength of your metatarsals, make a habit of the following exercises:

1. Sit on the floor with your legs straight out. Stretch your feet down toward the floor as far as they will go. Then curl your toes under hard and hold for a count of five. With the toes still curled, bend your feet toward you and hold. Relax for a moment and then repeat ten times slowly.

2. Pick up a lead pencil with all the toes of one foot. (That's quite a job in itself!) Then twist your foot inward and try to write your name on a piece of paper. When you can do it with ease five times daily, the smile in your feet will put a smile on your face.

ST. LOUIS friends have received news of the marriage of Mrs. Eugene Evans Constable and Philip H. Tomlinson in Paris Aug. 10. Mr. Tomlinson and his bride are spending their honeymoon cruising through European inland waterways aboard a friend's yacht. They will return to this country next month to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gwynne Evans, at their summer home, Dunover, at Nantucket, Mass.

The former Mrs. Constable, her 6-year-old son, Pepper Constable III, and Mr. and Mrs. Evans went to Nantucket from St. Louis in early June. She flew to Paris Aug. 4 to join Mr. Tomlinson.

After a few weeks' visit at Nantucket, Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson and young Pepper will go to New York to live. The newly married couple met at the resort last summer and again last winter in Delray Beach, Fla., where the bride, leased a house and Mr. Tomlinson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Tomlinson of Short Hills, N.J., were spending the season at their winter home there.

THE BRIDE is a former Mary Institute student and a graduate of Low-Heywood School, Stamford, Conn. A member of the Junior League, she was a maid of honor at the Valedictory ball the year she made her debut. Mrs. Percy Melville (Julia Evans) of New York and Mrs. Lawrence Dame (Mary Louise Evans) of Boston are her sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Evans, who live here at 10 Hortense place, are not expected to return from Nantucket until early November. During their absence Mrs. Joseph Wertheimer and her sister, Miss Martha Skinner, of the Congress Hotel, are occupying their home.

Traveling With Henry
New Showplace in Sweden
By Henry McLemore

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 22. A SMALL, unpretentious, green wooden house, half hidden by trees whose branches throw shadows on a dreamy canal, is fast becoming one of the major showplaces of Stockholm.

Guides tell you that almost as many people want to see the snug little home as want to see the superb medieval castle of Drottningholm, the magnificent City Hall, or the National Museum.

The cozy house was the dwelling place of Ingrid Bergman in the days before Hollywood beckoned and she was known chiefly as a promising young graduate of the Kungliga Dramatiska Teatern here.

The sightseeing bus pass in front of it near the end of their two-hour trip over the lakes and through the canals which give Sweden's capital its name, "The Venice of the North."

When the passengers are told that on their right is the place where Ingrid Bergman raked the leaves, cooked the food, washed the dishes, and all the other things that a good Swedish housewife does, necks are craned to the crackling point, "oh's" and "ah's" all but rock the boat, and the skipper of the boat, knowing human nature, throttles down to a mere crawl.

IF THE BOAT I was on is typical, tourists pay no attention to the next five minutes of the trip, so busy are they discussing Miss Bergman's flamboyant departure from the role of star housewife, whether or not her career is ruined, whether she gives a hoot if it is, and the mystery of why she chose the biding Rossmallin when she undoubtedly could have gotten a man with a full head of hair. (This last annoyed me. What in the world is wrong with a man who is growing bald gracefully?)

IF YOU DON'T care to explore the insides of museums, libraries, public buildings and the like, most of Stockholm can be seen by boat. Along about the third month of a trip many tourists find the insides of historic buildings almost repellent. I am entering this stage now, and by the time I get to Switzerland I probably wouldn't cross the street to hear an Alp yodel.

The symptoms of this disease—known by the rather long name of "let's-sit-outside-while-the-others-go-in"—are very pronounced. You know you are catching it when, no matter how beautiful the staircase, you find yourself counting the number of steps it has. Another symptom is the disinclination to walk the length of a gallery to see a Rembrandt or a Velasquez when you've already seen one.

Stockholm is the ideal city in which to catch the tourist fatigue because it is such a lovely city that you need not feel ashamed about not going inside buildings for your beauty. Other cities may have one or two more breath-taking views than Stockholm, but certainly no city can match it in the endless number of delights to the eye it has to offer.

It is a city of islands, and the city fathers have seen to it that Man has not been allowed to crowd Nature out of the picture. To walk about Stockholm is to walk in a vast park. Hundreds of sailboats dot the blue waters. Graceful bridges connect the many islands. A few minutes' walk from almost any of the commercial centers and you can see ducks and swans paddling around in the main waterways.

I HAVEN'T SEEN all of Stockholm by any means, but it must have fewer ugly buildings than any other capital anywhere. Even though I knew that Sweden was ahead of the rest of the world in social progressiveness, I was not prepared for the sight of the Old People's Home here. It is situated on a high hill, and is the first big building travelers by ship see when they enter the harbor. Everyone seeing it takes it for the Royal Palace, it being about as big and a more handsome building than King Gustav's Royal Palace.

Stockholm being as lovely as it is, and having so many advantages, it may puzzle you to know that thousands of Swedes dream throughout each year of the vacation that will take them to Copenhagen for two weeks, or longer if possible.

Tasty Tricks

Food styling is the home-maker's true forte. You can easily turn left-over beef or veal into attractive servings with a cream sauce to which canned mushrooms have been added. A leg of lamb, or lamb shoulder left-over because de luxe delights when served with a pimento olive sauce.

Your Sea
Of Despair
Will Pass

By Elsie Robinson

THEY know it and loathe it to its last slimy drop—the men who go down to the sea in ships. They know and they loathe the Sargasso Sea.

There where the waves should break free and sparkling, there is silence. No currents ripple the sluggish surface of those waters, no birds skim its waveless depths. Only a slimy seaweed fills its great cavern and the skeletons of luckless ships which have been caught in it since men first sailed.

The Sargasso Sea. The sea of utter desolation and despair. You and I may never cross it and yet it comes to each man in his time.

Each one of us knows a time when there seems to be no hope for his life or even for his land. All he attempts fails. There is no light in the small successes for which we yearn, only a dead calm which we have settled upon life and robbed it of all its meaning and all its worth.

Yet the Sargasso Sea does not last forever. A little while and there are blue skies again and breaking waves and skimming birds. It is only an incident in the great ocean, this area of dead water. It is, I grant you, a dismal incident, but it does not last.

And it does not last in our lives either. It is bound to come to us beyond its slimy despair but just beyond are the bright skies of hope and the sunshine of faith and the sparkle of ambition.

Good Rules For Cooking Fresh Peas

By Edith Barber

HERE is one little chore that I never mind in the summer vegetable season. That is, shelling tender, young peas. I can remember when I felt that this was an ordeal, assigned as it always was to the children of the household. Of course, there were a good many peas to be shelled for our big family.

Nowadays, when I visit in the country, I will even joyfully pick the peas from the vine. There is nothing so sweet as freshly picked peas shelled just before cooking. Those that we find in market today retain much of their sweetness if they have been packed in ice according to modern methods. In selecting them, be sure that the pods are plump and that the ends are neither withered nor yellow. Keep them in a cool place, in the refrigerator if you have room, until just before they are to be cooked.

Now about the cooking. A very small amount of water should be used, a dash of salt should be added, the peas covered, brought to a boil and then cooked over low heat. If the cover is tight, the water will not evaporate to any extent. Young, fresh peas will often take not more than five or six minutes to become tender. It will take about the same length of time to bring up the pressure in your favorite pressure saucpan and to reduce this after half a minute of cooking. One way is as good as another for peas, in my opinion. Do not drain the vegetable. If you find that you have added more water than you need for saucpan cooking, you can let the peas cook uncovered for the latter time. Then add butter or cream. For variation, you may like to use a few pieces of sweet onion, a few leaves of lettuce, minced parsley or mint may be added with the butter or cream, when the peas are cooked without any additions. Sour cream may be passed at the table or used as a topping for peas cooked in any fashion.

PEAS, FRENCH STYLE
Cook shelled peas, covered, in very small amount of salted water. When almost tender, add butter and cook uncovered until most of the water has evaporated and peas are just tender. Sprinkle with minced parsley or a few mint leaves and top with sour cream.

PEAS, PARISIENNE
Follow same directions, but cook with a few lettuce leaves and a few slices of sweet onion. Omit parsley.

PEAS IN CREAM
Cook peas according to directions for PEAS, FRENCH STYLE. When tender, add small amount of cream and season to taste. A little sugar may be added if the peas are not young and tender.

Mink Jacket

A mink jacket that is made almost like a man's lounging jacket is a feature of Christian Dior's first American fur designs. He also likes the cape jacket, developing it in mink as well as broadtail. One fitted coat of pale brown broadtail is designed like a cloth coat. Sleeves are set in with a dressmaker emphasis. There also are concealed pockets making it unnecessary to carry a handbag in cold weather.

"It was too good to be true!"

says MRS. W. C. NIEBLING
4452 Ellenwood, ST. LOUIS

"Freshly, I didn't expect to be satisfied—but I tried No-Rinse Surf because I have a big wash and time is important. It was wonderful—the hours I saved, and all the back-breaking work of rinsing. I was afraid it was too good to be true."

"Now my mind was changed—when I took the clothes off the line. They felt so soft—as soft as any wash I've ever had with three rinsings. They smelled nice and sweet, and looked so gleaming clean! Why, usually I have to use bleach to get shirts so white."

"I was perfectly dazzled by the brightness of the colored things... and I was delighted with the way they came up so crisp and fresh with ironing. No more long, hard washdays for me—I'm washing the easiest, and the best way, now—with No-Rinse Surf."

See for yourself with No-Rinse Surf—only washday product approved by U. S. Testing Co. for no rinsing!

Do you ever ask...

What's happened to nylon stockings?

Why don't they wear the way they used to?

Learn the facts—in the September issue of GOOD HOUSEKEEPING!

IS IT REALLY TRUE that nylons aren't as good as they used to be?

Is it possible manufacturers are deliberately making them weaker—so they'll wear out sooner, and you'll have to buy more pairs?

What is the reason nylons don't last as long as they did a few years ago?

You'll find the answers in the September issue of GOOD HOUSEKEEPING in a fascinating article called "The Truth about Nylon Stockings."

Some of these answers may surprise you. All will reassure you. All of them are honest facts. For GOOD HOUSEKEEPING set its own Textile Laboratory to work to investigate the whole much-discussed nylon situation.

In true GOOD HOUSEKEEPING fashion, their report covers not only the question of quality, but every other factor that influences stocking wear.

You'll find in the article, for example, information about denier and gauge—the difference in knit between seam and seamless stockings—facts about irregulars and seconds—suggestions on what kind of care will prolong wear—the effect of heat—the importance of girdle length—how to tell if a stocking fits correctly.

Discover "The Truth about Nylon Stockings" in GOOD HOUSEKEEPING—this month!

And for authoritative articles on every phase of modern living, read GOOD HOUSEKEEPING—every month!

Do you know what to do...

If you are asked to be a volunteer fund-raiser? What are the best techniques for door-to-door canvassing, box-shaking, mailing circulars? Learn what experiences have proved successful—in the September GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

If your child's school has no lunch program? You can start one yourself! Every step, from organizing a staff to planning menus and financing, is explained in September GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

If you're a "working" wife and want to simplify meal-getting? Go on a week-end cooking spree that will provide the basis for several meals to follow. Complete plans, menus and recipes in the September GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

If you have to telephone for help in an emergency? Whom do you call? What is the first information to give? How much can you expect the operator to do? Read "Operator, This Is an Emergency!" in September GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

If you need a good Fall suit that won't cost a fortune? See the new Fall styles in September GOOD HOUSEKEEPING. Every one a gem of smartness, durability, and value. Coats, jackets, shoes, too.

If your household appliances aren't working right? Learn what points to check... how to diagnose common "ailments" of refrigerators, washers, etc. Read GOOD HOUSEKEEPING article "Before You Call the Serviceman..."

If you want to install a heating unit in a home that has no basement? See the "19 Space-saver Heating Plants" illustrated in September GOOD HOUSEKEEPING. New, small-but-efficient units that fit in wall, baseboard, closet—almost any odd corner.

KSD Weather Reports

At 8:45, 7:45 and 6:30 a.m.; report and forecast by Harry F. Harkness, chief of the St. Louis Weather Bureau, at 12:15 p.m. and 1:15 p.m. at 12:15 p.m. and 1:15 p.m.

Lamb and Bean Stew

One and one-half pounds lean stewing lamb, two tablespoons salad oil, one clove garlic, three small onions, one cup cubed potatoes, one cup tomato juice, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one cup water, one teaspoon pepper, one pound green beans or two packages frozen beans, one-fourth teaspoon thyme.
Cut lamb into chunks the size of a walnut and brown in hot salad oil (use your heavy skillet that has a tight-fitting cover). While meat cooks, chop garlic and onion and add to meat along with tomatoes, stock, salt and pepper. Then cover tightly and cook very tender until lamb is very tender when pierced with a fork.
